EDITOR'S LETTER

fall the substances that bring pleasure to people, sand is perhaps the most unlikely. It is unpleasant, gritty, unable to sustain life, disappointing when combined with sandwiches, infuriating when rubbed into sensitive folds of skin and valuable only as an ingredient in other similarly uninspiring materials such as concrete and glass. Yet, in spite of its general uselessness, thousands of you are currently longing for its abrasive charms, looking forward to the day when you can once again lie down on top of it and cultivate your skin cancer.

Many of you may be contemplating a spring break trip, and to help you organize it properly, you should turn to page 106. But I would also like to remind you of a couple of sand-based incidents that illustrate its potential for disaster. The first happened in 1998 in Australia, when a couple became so aroused on the sand that they headed into the sea for some sexing, which apparently they performed in a number of positions. The woman then submerged her head under the water so that she might better perform fellatio, and her excited partner unwisely put his hands on her head and held it down. Not surprisingly, the woman died. Besides a four-and-a-half year prison sentence, he also required treatment for outbreaks of nervous boils on 12 occasions.

The other incident happened in 1970, when a large, dead whale washed up on an Oregon beach, and local authorities decided the best way to dispose of it would be to rig it with half a ton of dynamite and blow it to pieces. Naturally, spectators gathered to witness what must have been a world first, and local television crews had the foresight to record the event. What they captured was a huge flaming explosion, followed by images of gleeful Oregonians observing the skyward trajectory of the bits, followed by a fantastic moment when their festive mood turns to panic as they realize that the whale is heading back to earth right where they are standing-and not in a fine mist, but in minivan-sized boulders of blubber. So if you thought spring break was all about chugging Pabst from a shoe, think again-the beach is not all it seems.

Enjoy the issue.

FHM would like to thank the ACLU. the ATF, the IRS and the lovely ladies of MADD for the butt-load of mail we receive day after day. But sadly, though we appreciate the attention, we've yet to come across a single subpoena or cease and desist letter that is clever, funny or original enough to print in this section. If you think you can do better, please don't hesitate to send it to us at Letters to the Editor, FHM, 110 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10011, or e-mail it to letters@FHMUS.com. TER MONTH

Reader loves his meat

After reading in your December issue about the beer necklace that lets you hang a brew around your neck like a glorious feed bag, I bought one for myself. Once I got it in the mail, I found another amazing use: It's perfect for keeping snack meats handy too. Check out this picture of me wearing it in my dorm room. I bought some meat, and me and a bunch of the guys had a huge salami party. It was awesome! Ricky Merpi, Ann Arbor, MI Let's see: Did you enjoy the sausage fest? Was it hard salami? Did anyone get their meat smoked? Come on, folks. Sometimes this is just too easy.

Perv relives good times

The Reporter story on the underwater strip club Mermaid Bar [December 2001] reminded me of my youth. Every summer, Dad would take us all to the lake. It was only a day trip, but we treated it like a major expedition. The countless hours I spent just below the surface, peering through my extra-tight goggles and underwater camera at young camel toe, were priceless. Thanks for stirring up such fond memories. Bob Hector, Chicago, IL Next month, we're doing a thing on priests' dating habits. Something tells us that one will hit home as well.

Reader shows soul

In your interview with Colé Trzaska ["It's Your Ex-Girlfriend!", December 2001], she says her ex once got a James Brown disc caught in his CD player. She then explains how she'll vomit if she ever hears "Papa's Got A Brand New Bag" again. Colé might be superfine, but why talk bad about Soul Brother No. 1? That man went to jail for all of us.

Jack Pflugger, via e-mail

Unless "all of us" helped him beat his wife and cross state lines to evade police, JB pretty much went to jail for himself.

Nurses rock hard

In your interview with Slipknot [December 2001], their lead singer talks about the crazy things he has chicks do, and mentions a time when he talked four women into pissing on him at once. Let me just say, I work as a nurse in an old-folks' home, and I have people pissing on me seven, sometimes eight times a day. Does that mean I'm a punk rock star? Henry Roberts, Cincinnati, OH You probably also watch people pop astonishing quantities of pills. Do you think that makes you an actor like Robert Downey Jr.?

Milwaukee claims intelligence

With regards to Milwaukee's "crude machine shops that couldn't make any typewriter keys delicate enough for fast typing" ["The Burning Questions," December 2001], are you unaware that these "crude machine shops" produce world-renowned Harley-Davidson motorcycles? They also gave the world outboard boat motors, thanks to Evinrude. Think about that the next time you take a bikini babe on a boat for a photo shoot. And when your heart condition > flares up at said shoot, well, the "crude machine shops" of

GE Medical Systems also make the vast majority of medical equipment. So, I hope you apologize to Milwaukee's "crude machine shops." John L. Hoh Jr., Milwaukee, WI

Sorry for making fun of you in print, Milwaukee. We had no idea you guys could read.

You'll never believe this. I actually saw this old guy lose control and run his car up the wire of a utility pole. I took a picture. Cool, huh?

Greg Pitts, Nashville, TN

Yeah, really cool. Way to keep your head and stand around taking pictures. Less crafty people would have just rushed to help the injured crash victim.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader hits the jackpot

I am a 20-year-old male who has struck a bit of bad luck lately. First, I was forced to move back in with my parents after getting into some trouble with the law. Next, my fiancée broke up with me. Then my car blew up . . . twice. And to top things off, I recently had an accident at work where I cut two of my fingers off my right hand (and sadly, I am righthanded). Can you guys at FHM do anything to cheer me up?

Josh Taylor, Montrose, PA

Tell you what, send us all of your righthanded gloves and we'll replace them with mittens. See-things are looking better already.

Dog moves excite girlfriend

In response to the article "50 Ways to Turn Her On" in your December 2001 issue: My friend Rick told me he knew a move called the "Bulldog" Nelson that he was sure I couldn't get out of. Basically, it was just a Full Nelson, but when he was showing it to me, he really cranked it hard. When I begged him to get off, he simulated humping me and barked in my ear, "Woof . . . this is Bulldog Nelson . . . woof." You can imagine my dismay when my girlfriend walked in and saw everything. But apparently, she was turned on. She even offered to be the next victim of the Bulldog. My point is you guys should add the move to your article. She loved it.

Brad Titone, via e-mail

We've got an even better move. It's called the Mexican Turnstile. If you would care to stop by our offices, we'll happily demonstrate.

Macho's not so macho

Randy "Macho Man" Savage, the wrestler who introduced a generation of kids to the joys of indigestion by encouraging them to "snap into a Slim Jim," says that when he gets a flat tire, he either calls AAA or makes his girlfriend fix it. Hasn't that guy shot enough 'roids to pick up the car and walk it home, much less change the damn tire on his own?

Brad Irvington, Red Bank, NJ It's not a question of strength. He just doesn't have the attention span.

THE BROWNEST NOSE

hat story about the group of pimps down South might be-no, isthe funniest thing I've ever read. "Catching ho's in bulk," "Sam's Club pimpin'," all of it was so funny I nearly pissed my pants. But those dudes should know this: They're just wannabes. You guys are the real pimps. And truth be told. I guess that makes me your bitch, because month after month you put me on my back. Thanks. Don Masterson. Miami, FL

Sexy poetry praised

Running four different covers, with four different hot chicks in lingerie was cool, especially because they were all so fine. But going the extra mile and printing each lady's poem about their dainties was genius. It's a fact: Every girl, whether she admits it or not, writes poems about her undergarments. Your cover models deserve a lot of credit for showing the world their sexy sonnets. Stan Eplenton, Seattle, WA Had we known that rhyming four words with "G-string" counted as a sonnet, maybe we would have passed English.

Mulder sends mail

I hate to say it but the anti-mind-control helmet you teach readers to build in December's Tech Special looks a little chintzy. Do you think tinfoil and tape can really keep the government from our brains? And does it protect WITH ONE OF against their plasma sprays YOUR FRIENDS, or just the high-frequency NOT HERS microwave transmissions? Make sure to pick out Name and address withheld a stud, not that guy

All we know is, we've all got 'em on now, haven't paid taxes in years and the ATF still hasn't figured a way into our compound.

Geometry can be hard

As soon as I received my December issue of FHM, I automatically turned to the

"50 Ways to Turn Her On" story. No. 10 recommends "having a threesome with one of your friends, not hers." I have been trying to get my girlfriend to do this for more than a year. We are getting married in June and I would really like to watch her have sex with one of my friends. She always tells me how cute he is, but then she won't go through with it. What can I do to help her see the benefit of sleeping with my friend while I watch?

WHAT'S WRONG

eah, yeah, yeah ... we know damn well that we mixed up Nikki Ziering and Sharon Case on our contents page, but FHM only rewards readers who spot our less than obvious mistakes. Find an

Boxer bio jumbled

Your Ali movie preview stated that Ali beat Sonny Liston to become heavyweight champ, then "dodged the draft, got stripped of the title, converted to Islam, changed his name,

Squirrels libeled

In "Five Things You Didn't Know About . . . The Matrix" [December 2001], you referred to the main character as "Neo." Did you even watch the film? His name is Leo. Neo's not even a name. Stan Palotta, San Diego, CA

Wow. We'd tell you to try taking the red pill-the one that lets you see the real world-but you probably wouldn't understand that reference either. His name is Neo. You are a moron. And we will be expecting our $20 no later than April 1.

SAMANTHA MUMBA

The exotic-looking Irish-born beauty explodes into view, going from pop princess to Hollywood's next leading lady

PHOTOGRAPHY BY MARC BAPTISTE

REPORTER

Astonishingly, her schizophrenia extended beyond the make-believe boyfriend. More than a decade before the 19-year-old scored her first stateside top 10 hit, "Gotta Tell You," she kept a diary in which she penned notes to her adoring "fans"—as if she were famous. She once prophetically wrote how exhausted she was from her grueling pop-star schedule. "I still have that diary, and the things I wrote in it were just weird," says the eye-catching filly whose rare looks come from a potent Zambian-Irish blend. "I was so obsessed with having boobs that I'd write day after day how they were getting bigger, which at 8 years old they certainly weren't."

As FHM's jaw-dropping photos prove, everything has developed just fine, not excluding Samantha's career. Though her US debut album—also titled Gotta Tell You—didn't make a Britney Spears-like impact at the register, it was only step one of her American invasion. Phase two involved the opening slot on a massive 'N Sync tour. And she's since landed a leading role alongside Guy Pearce and Jeremy Irons in the upcoming sci-fi adventure The Time Machine. Based on the novel by H.G. Wells, the movie tells the tale of a scientist who, while testing his theories on time travel, somehow launches himself 800,000 years into the future, where he discovers that mankind has been separated into two classes: the hunter and the hunted.

"I assumed I wouldn't get the part because it's such a big movie," Samantha confesses when asked about her audition. "I didn't give it very much. We even said I was in a rush because I was flying to Europe that evening. Eventually, I was asked to another screen test in New York. A few weeks later, I got a call saying I'd got it."

Funny, now that she has big things to write about in a journal, she doesn't keep one. "I'm way too forgetful," she explains. "I keep meaning to begin a new one, and I always start out with the best intentions, but after a day or two, I forget about it or can't think of anything to say."

As for a boyfriend? "He's certainly not imaginary anymore, but that's all I care to say. I'm crazy enough, I'd hate to jinx it." (JB)

'THAT FISH TANK HAS WHEELS!'

See-through van creates world of possibilities for lewd highway gestures

f you thought standing on an overpass and throwing rocks at regular cars was fun, boy, does Honda have a treat for you. Introducing the all-glass Unibox, the most shatterable concept car ever created.

Scheduled for production around, oh ... never, the transparent van debuted at this year's Tokyo Motor Show. But despite the fancy joystick steering wheel and pedestrian airbags that shield any hobos you sideswipe, the van's all-glass body sadly makes it the worst car ever for, say, drug smuggling or pants-less driving. Additionally, it would be hell in a crash.

*From a safety standpoint, glass isn't the least bit practical," admits Honda spokesman Andy Boyd. "That's the whimsical aspect of the car." As for usage, Honda suggests parking the van somewhere scenic, then transforming it into "a cafe or listening room." Alternately, you could just fill it with jellybeans and let kids guess how many there are.

RECIPES

'MAKE IT FRIED, LITTLE LADY'

Elvis's cookbook lets you binge like an eccentric, porky rocker or the merely hungry, a simple burger will suffice. But what to do when you're more than famished-when you're "I just want to eat till I'm nothing but a bloated caricature of my former self" starving? When you want to binge till you blow an o-ring and die wheezing on the crapper? Elvis knew. And so can you, thanks to Are You Hungry Tonight?

Elvis' Favorite Recipes. Finally, future face-stuffers can learn to pump potato cheese soup full of that "stick-to-your-ribs flavor Elvis loved," and to prepare the fried peanut butter and banana sandwiches that helped do him in. The King's personal chefs, many of whom contribute to the book, note that Elvis also enjoyed eating healthily; his diet often consisted of string beans ... laced with salt pork and sugar. Jenny Craig would be proud. (JB)

t last, the world of forensic science and the age-old practice of invading vagoongaville join in a passionate embrace known as the Consent Condom.

Intended as an anti-date-rape device, the space age sheath works like this: The woman tears open the package and removes the inner sleeve, which records her fingerprints, signaling her consent. Next, she documents the date by tearing through the numbers that run down its sides.

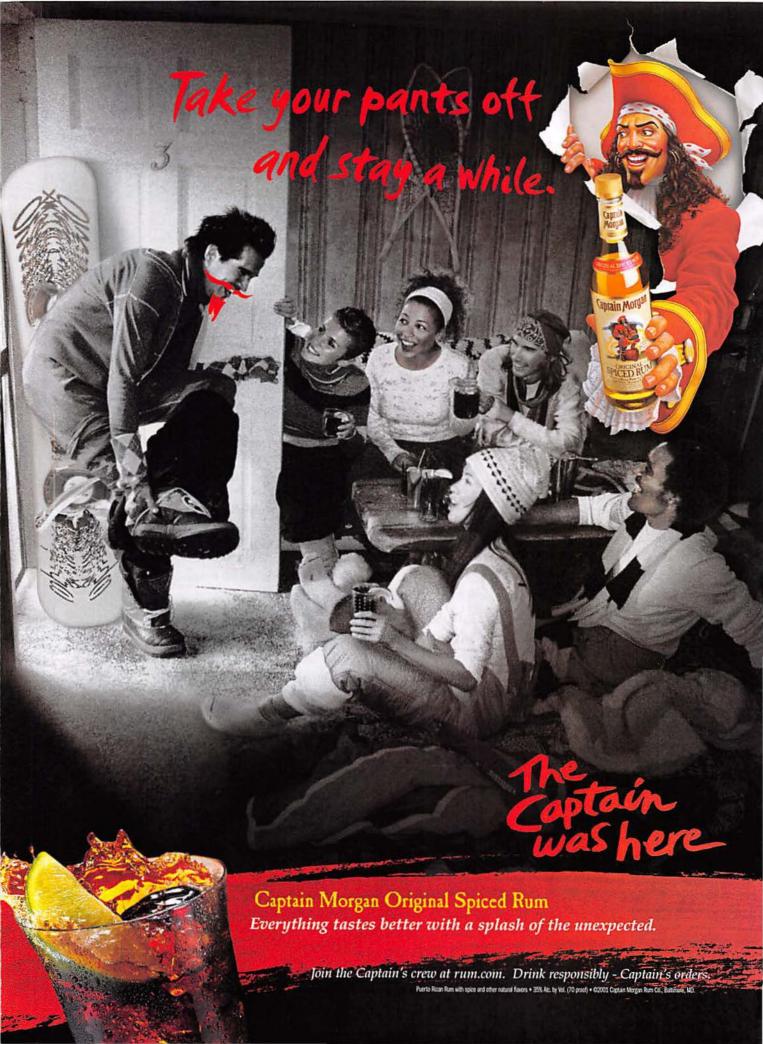

Effective? Yes. But is it a mood killer? "Science may not be sexy, but then again, neither are accusations," says inventor David Morrow, Well said. Besides, most men would memorize the periodic table if the reward involved the fur taco. (JB)

Don't let a pesky thing like gravity interfere with your ability to catch a buzz or cosmonauts, being based on the Mir space station was a hellish existence. There was little for the endangered spacemen to do but stare in depression as essential components broke off and floated away toward Mercury. It should therefore come as no surprise that Russian cosmonauts such as Alexander Polishchuk were boozing it up there for years. They even tore down wall panels to stash a few bottles. Unfortunately, getting sloshed in zero gravity required the commies to slurp up the firewater through syringes. If only they'd had RémySpace cognac.

Investing tireless weeks of research, Rémy has crafted a space-friendly drink and an accompanying bottle. Frozen at minus12 degrees Celsius, the cognac is sent

PAPER DANCE

Dirty books bring peepshow fun to a library near you ome people say Charles Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities is "a real page turner." But many other people are illiterate. For them, the epic tome is just several hundred nearly identical, terribly frustrating pages, and as utterly useless as Richard Simmons's testicles. Luckily, Strip Flips! creator Leslie Lyons was careful to avoid Dickens's mistake.

By filling each book with pictures of women in different states of undress, each edition of the Strip Flips! series is captivating. Turn the pages fast enough and, using cutting-edge 19th-century technology, the ladies do a dance as they undress. Smile as Susan gets freaky with a stuffed bunny. Next, flip the pages backward. Feel the power as she then puts her clothes back on without a word. If only life were so simple. (JB)

THE Fall Guy

Thirty-year-old Mike Smith gets paid to pull dangerous stunts and total luxury cars

Job requirements

"The truth is anybody can fall down stairs," says Smith. "I can take any guy and chuck him down the stairs. It's just that one guy will get hurt and one guy won't. That's some of

When you can crash a $50,000 car and get paid for it, that's pretty damn cool

the stuff you can't teach. There are just some people that know how to react to things."

Company cars

"When you're crashing cars, most of the time you get the biggest pieces of shit they can find. But for some BMW.com commercials, I got to drive a BMW X-5. We backed them into stuff, drove them into swamps and basically tore them up. When you can crash a $50,000 car and get paid for it, that's pretty damn cool."

Workplace hazards

"You want the dumbest stunt I ever did? They were recreating a Jackass kind of stunt on The X-Files. There's a ramp and this guy is going to drive a shopping cart down a hill and jump the ramp. I had to veer into a curb and flip the cart. How many times in your life have you practiced falling out of a shopping cart while going downhill? You just have to take what comes. Talk about knowing that you're going to get screwed up...."

Medical benefits

"I got to be James Bond underwater in Tomorrow Never Dies. I was down at the bottom of a 40-foot water tank. Then I took the regulator out of my mouth and had to exhale slowly as I went the whole way up without air. They had a doctor there to monitor me because you can embolize doing that, which is when a capillary in your lungs explodes. I did that stunt 14 times that day." (AW)

How did you end up in such a strange line of work?

to pay men to keep them company. Other men do. That must have come as a shock. Oh, yeah. I dropped by the escort agency for about looked me up and down, and told me I got the job. I even saw some superhot girls wandering around the place while I was there bonus. Two days later they told me meet my first client. They also said to dress respectably, because I'd be going to a four-star restaurant, and to meet my date next to the phone booth in some hotel lobby. I watched this guy stand there for about 10 minutes before he came over to me and said he thought I was the guy he was waiting for. I almost ran.

GALL ME SKYWALKER'

You've climbed the Empire State Building hundreds of times to make repairs. How do you get to the very top?

There are pegs, which stick out about six inches, welded to the side of the TV antenna. You just climb the pegs for 90 to 100 feet.

Doesn't it get windy up there?

Oh, yeah. I've climbed in 50 mph winds. That's so strong that our buckets swing out sideways and literally pull you off the tower. What would happen if someone forgot to turn off the antenna while you were on it?

You can actually feel FM radio signals. They make you hot and you can get a burn. But the television signals heat you up from the inside. You can get severely damaged internally and you won't even feel it.

Ever seen anyone freeze up with fear?

That does happen. Good climbers have a grip that's firm, but not tight. Fear can make your grip too tight. By the time we got this one guy down, he had completely worn out the inside of a brand-new pair of gloves, and his palms were covered in blood, all from panic.

How good is your safety equipment?

If you fell and you were caught on the old equipment, it would break your back, so the modern belts have a decelerating device. But actually, if we're just doing an inspection, we usually don't bother using it. (AW)

Flying with flames, 007's license to kill and red-meat titles-FHM digs up the answers to your toughest queries

License to kill

Is there really such a thing as a license to kill, like 007 has? Is it only a British thing and, if not, where can I get one? Rich D'Olivera. Boston, MA Take that down a notch. Britain's Secret Intelligence Service (SIS) does have agents who are licensed to kill, but only in selfdefense and only in times of war. As for the US, last October. President Bush repealed a 25-year-old executive order that prohibited federal employees from taking part in indiscriminate assassination. This, in effect, gave the CIA a license to kill in its hunt for Osama bin Laden, It also allows the Agency to wipe out any other suspected terrorists where and when they find them, but only while Bush's order stands.

Flying flames

It's unsafe to have a naked flame on an aircraft, so how can the Olympic flame be flown to the host country of the Games? Mark Hawthorn, San Diego, CA After a ceremony at the Temple of Hera at Olympia in southern Greece, where the torch is lit using a parabolic mirror and the sun's rays, it is put onboard an otherwise nonsmoking flight to the continent of the host city. The flame is encased in a specially designed lantern, which is safe for airplane travel. "You need permission from the FAA, and it is a chartered flight for this purpose," reports Mark Walker, Olympic spokesman for the Torch Relay. Interestingly, "regular" torches relay the flame for only 17 percent of its journey. The rest of the time, it's carried using special equipment in cars, trains, planes and, occasionally, underwater.

sedate. Kelis isn't shrieking this time, but Wanderland is just as in-your-face as its predecessor. And with The Neptunes showcasing their fader finesse once again, there are moments when Kelis pushes the boundaries of rock 'n' soul even further.

After a somewhat grueling intro, she dives into the record's first single, "Young, Fresh N' New." Part Space Invaders, part Arabian-inspired beat, the track is the ideal backdrop for Kelis's multilavered harmonies. The attitude is from the same school as En Vogue's "Free Your Mind"strong and determined. Not as catchy as "Caught Out There," but far more refined.

The next few are equally punchy. The supersexual "Flashback" and "Popular Thug" both offer sufficient bounce. Then comes "Daddy," on which Kelis rhymes a la Debbie Harry on "Rapture." The simple lyrics are kind of cool at first, but 30 seconds later, they lose their steam.

Maybe the first few songs shine too bright, but with the notable exception of "Perfect Day" featuring No Doubt, the second half of the album is pretty bland. Each song blends into the next with the same spacey Neptunes beats, with lyrics alternating between sex and designer name dropping. Still, five winners on an album of 14 ain't bad. It's just not for everyone.  (QR)

ALBUM REVIEWS

X-ecutioners Built from Scratch LOUD Formerly known as the X-men (who would have thought someone else owned the trademark?), hip-hop's top turntable assassins match wits with an intriguing cast of characters, including Linkin Park, Kenny Muhammad and the Tom Tom Club, as well as an all-star list of MCs. "A Journey into Sound," built manually with their six-turntable setup and absolutely no samplers or overdubbing, will amaze, as will the remake of "Genius of Love." A must for hip-hop aficionados.  (QR)

The D.O.C. Deuce SILVERBACK

The D.O.C. made a name for himself first by teaming with Dr. Dre to produce such classics as "Straight Outta Compton" and Eazy-E's "Eazy Duz It," and then with his own record, No One Can Do It Better. But he was taken out of the game in '89 when a car crash left him with a crushed larynx. Thankfully, modern science has done the man right, and the D.O.C. returns with bigger, faster, stronger lyrics, and a voice that's raspy, wheezy and painful. A pretty cool combo.  (SB)

Phantom Planet The Guest EPIC

With Rushmore's Jason Schwartzman on drums, and Alex Greenwald-another actor, best known for Donnie Darko-singing lead, Phantom Planet could probably just phone it in and still get substantial play. But producers Mitchell Froom (Tom Waits, Paul McCartney) and Tchad Blake (Pearl Jam, Peter Gabriel) help to build a deceptively simple sound akin to Pavement. Throw in a video by Spike Jonze and you have one likable, well-packaged, highly polished album.  (SB)

Cornelius Point MATADOR

Wrongly hailed by hipsters as a genius. Cornelius releases his second album, a collage of sounds that don't add up. Though not intended as narratives, his piecedtogether melodies need more audio glue to sound cohesive. Tracks such as "Tone Twilight Zone" and "Bird Watching at Inner Forest" are soothing, but they hardly warrant a second listen. "I Hate Hate" apes some Metallicastyle riffs, but it comes off as irritating. If there is a point to Point, we've missed it.  (TS)

... you didn't know about The Evil Dead

Due to a tight budget, director Sam Raimi couldn't afford a dolly to film the splatterfest's shots that rush through the woods. Instead, he made the "Vas-O-Cam," a camera mounted to a piece of wood coated with Vaseline.

Raimi also couldn't afford housing while editing in New York, so he'd get lead actor Bruce Campbell to crash at the homes of women who liked him. Then Raimi would show up too.

To produce authentic screams, Raimi would often poke Campbell with a sharp stick.

The 1973 Dodge Oldsmobile 88 used in the film is Raimi's car and has cameoed in all but one of his movies. Look for it again in the upcoming Spider-Man.

The Evil Dead was banned in the UK due to gore. The censor's original notes had orders to "reduce the sight of a pencil being twisted in an ankle," and "reduce the sight of Shelly chewing off her own hand." (AW)

Hollywood's action king on meeting with George Bush Sr., moving aircraft carriers for better lighting and convincing audiences Eddie Murphy isn't gay

You're a producer. Does that mean you just write checks and pull onto the set every now and then in a black Porsche?

Not quite. We're involved in every step from buying and developing material to deciding, along with the director, who's going to be in the movie. Once the picture starts, the director's really the king of the ship, but we still work very closely on the cut of the movie, the music, and all the sound and visual effects. Last year, I had four pictures in various states of production, and they were all on different continents, so I was traveling a lot.

With films such as Top Gun, Crimson Tide, Pearl Harbor and Black Hawk Down, you've probably convinced more kids to enlist than Uncle Sam. Has the government given you an honorary title, like Admiral Bruckheimer?

Not yet. I've been to the Pentagon a number of times. I've met with two secretaries of the Navy, the secretary of defense and the head of the CIA. I had conversations with George Bush Sr. when he was the vice president about a project I was working on, I can't remember which one. He said, "Look, any help you need getting through to the government agencies, let me know and I'll cut through the red tape."

Do you get to hitch a ride on aircraft carriers a lot?

I've been on aircraft carriers and nuclear subs. I've been offered flights on F-14s and F-18s, and as soon as my schedule clears, I'm going to take the Navy up on it.

Ever had any wacky battleship mishaps?

While shooting Top Gun, we filmed jets taking off and landing on a carrier during a training mission. But the director, Tony Scott, wanted the scene to be backlit, and the ship was facing in the wrong direction as far as the sun was concerned. The captain said, "In order to turn the ship and get them backlit, we'd have to spend about $15,000 in fuel. That's not part of our mission." The studio said there was no

I've been offered flights on F-18s; when my schedule clears, I'm going way they were going to spend the money to turn a ship around, so the director pulled out his checkbook and wrote the US government a $15,000 check.

Did you hang out with Special Forces troops while putting together Black Hawk Down?

We had a lot of Rangers who did fast roping for us. These guys drop 100 feet from a helicopter while they're surrounded by gunfire. They slide down the rope so quickly that, unless they tape their fingers, it burns right through the gloves and all the skin comes off their hands. The young men who we worked with were sent over Censors wanted to change the final line in Cone with the Wind from "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn" to "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a hoot." Producer David O. Selznick refused. He was fined $5,000 to Afghanistan right away. September 12, they were out.

You've also sent a lot of actors to Army training. Any of them ever have trouble dealing with that?

Most of them do at first. When we were training Ben Affleck and Josh Hartnett for Pearl Harbor, we sent them to a Ranger boot camp for four days. They were filling out papers, and they thought it was going to be easy because the officers had been very cordial. Then the sergeant walked in and just lit into them. He talked to Ben, and Ben kept writing, and he screamed, "Listen, son, you look at me when I'm talking to you!" Ben said, "Doesn't he know I'm an actor?" That didn't work.

Are you always tweaking your movies after test screenings?

Constantly. When we made Beverly Hills Cop, originally at the beginning of the movie, Eddie Murphy's friend hugs him and tells Eddie he loves him. The audience started laughing. They thought Eddie was gay. So we had to change that a little.

What's the most expensive effects shot you've ever had?

In Pearl Harbor, the shots of the Japanese Zeros going down Battleship Row were expensive. The more moving parts you have in a shot, the more it costs. For those shots, there's flak and smoke in the air and ships we had to create. Everything in the frame other than the backdrop was created by the folks at Industrial Light & Magic. The shot ran for seven or eight seconds, and cost a quarter of a million dollars. (AW)

How much does it cost to import a good woman these days?

It depends on how you're doing it. If you go on our site and you just want to start writing to women, you can look at the pictures and profiles, find a woman and buy her address for $9. There's a guy in Phoenix who only got one address, went over, met the girl and now they're happily married. So you can do it for as cheap as that.

What are my chances of landing a bride?

You can do our full-blown romance tour where you go to Russia and we'll throw a social where you'll meet hundreds of women. If you want to get married, you'll get married while you're there. On the South American tour we just did, we had about an 80 percent engagement rate.

more equal. Family is extremely important to them. Age difference is not that important, which is one of the things the men really like. A lot of these guys are in their late 30s or 40s, and it's harder for them to find younger women here. But in Russia, the women want the men to be 10 to 15 years older than them because they feel he's going to be more secure.

What's the return policy?

The women come to the US on a fiancée visa; it allows a woman to come over for a 90-day period, after which time she has to either marry or go home. That's great, because it gives everyone a chance to see what life is going to be like.

How often do you add new women to the site?

To the delight of near-forgotten VFW barflies everywhere, America's fascination with WWII glory continues, especially in the gaming world. For years, two hunters have tried to bag a moose, but have never had any success. Finally, they come up with a foolproof plan. They get a very authentic female moose costume and learn the mating call. The plan involves hiding in the costume, luring a male moose, then blowing a hole in him.

Setting themselves up on the edge of a clearing, the two don their costume and start moaning like a wild horny beast. Before long, their call is answered as a moose comes crashing out of the forest and into the clearing. "OK, let's get him," the guy in the front of the costume says excitedly.

"Damn! The zipper is stuck," the man in the back says after pulling on it frantically. "What are we going to do?"

"Well, I'm going to start eating grass," the man in front replies, "but you'd better brace yourself." Roger Suska, Brooklyn, NY

A little blind girl goes to her mom and sadly asks, "Mommy, when will I be able to see again?"

Smiling kindly, her mom replies, "I'll tell you what. I'll take you to the drugstore and get you some special cream for your eyes. You should be able to see by tomorrow morning."

The little girl jumps around in excitement, and the two head off to the store. That evening, the mother rubs the balm into the eyes of her anxious daughter. "Ouch, Mommy!" the daughter cries. "It stings!"

"Be brave," consoles her mother, and carefully wraps the daughter's little head in bandages before putting her to bed.

The next morning, the little girl stumbles into her mother's room. "Quick, Mom!" she insists in glee. "Take the bandages off!" Very slowly, the mother peels off the bandages while her daughter braces herself for the magic moment.

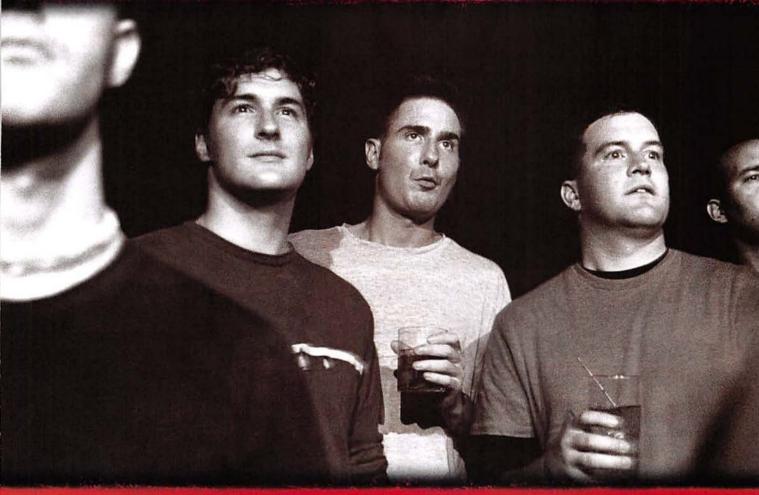

"But Mommy," the little girl says once the final bandage is removed. "I still can't see."

"Yes, dear," she replies. "April fools!"

IGGES TOBITS

Mark Kilroy's spring break started at the beach, with some beer and a hot Miss Tan Line. It ended when he became the main ingredient in a Satanic stew

BY JIMMY JELLINEK

or 21-year-old Mark Kilroy, spring break down in South Padre Island was supposed to be about chicks and beer. But on the second day of his trip, he found himself handcuffed and forced down to the floorboard by a group of men in a pickup truck. Their ringleader, Serafin Hernandez, cruised past the crowds of partiers and turned onto a quiet side street to take a leak. As Hernandez emptied his bladder, Kilroy kicked open the door of the truck and began running for his life. Hernandez scrambled back into the truck and immediately took off after him. Kilroy was 10 steps away from the safety of a crowded street when he was overtaken by the group. Jumping out of the truck, Hernandez yelled, "Freeze! Police!" Guns were pointed at Kilroy from all directions. Tossed back into the truck, he moaned from the back seat, "What's happening? Why are you doing this to me?" Hernandez offered reassurance. "Don't worry, everything's going to be fine." Then Kilroy's hands and feet were tied, and duct tape was placed over his mouth. Serafin Hernandez and his group weren't the police at all. They were members of a cult on a mission to find a young spring breaker—one who would be chopped up piece by piece.

Lured by images of nonstop MTV dance parties with ample booze and sex, Padre is America's king spring break location. Each year, thousands of horny college students make their way down to this south Texas beach town for a week of hedonism. Included is a mandatory visit to Matamoros, the dingy Mexican border town that serves as an adult Disneyland with its blocks of bars, strip clubs and a drinking age of 18.

On any given night during spring break, 30,000 students pack its streets. It is also home to "a hotbed of satanic activity," according to George Gavito, a former Cameron County sheriff in Brownsville, the last American city between Padre and Mexico. "I know the kids want to go down to Matamoros. But it's just a time bomb waiting to explode."

It's been years since the Kilroy tragedy, but Gavito says it's only a matter of time before it happens again. "If you're planning on coming here for spring break and head to Matamoros, don't think just because you're close to America that you're safe, 'cause you're not."

An hour before Mark Kilroy was snatched off the street, the University of Texas junior staggered out of Los Sombreros, a cheesy tequila and Tecate bar in Matamoros. He had his arm around a girl who had won that day's Miss Tan Line contest at the South Padre Sheraton pool. A dead ringer for Kilroy in Matamoros. The two, along with friends Brent Martin and Bradley Moore, had spent the evening bar hopping along Avenida Alvaro Obregon, the main drag where they chatted up the ladies and danced to Tone-Loc.

Kilroy's soon-to-be captor Serafin Hernandez stood outside and waited Kilroy's soon-to-be captor Serafin Hernandez stood outside and waited for last call, when thousands of wasted college kids spilled out onto the dusty street. A teeming mass of tit-flashing co-eds and urinating frat boys began marching its way back over the border. According to court records, Hernandez admitted that he scanned the crowd intently for a victim.

Sitting in his pickup truck across from the bar, Hernandez zeroed in on Kilroy, thinking to himself, "El Padrino would be pleased, because the gringo was blond and handsome." El Padrino was the leader of the cult, the one person Hernandez reported to. As Kilroy and his buddies started to make their way back to the border, Hernandez put his truck into gear and crept along. Huddleston remembers being overwhelmed by the masses of people that poured into the streets. "It was like walking out of a rock concert," he says. "There were people everywhere and staying together was impossible." After being swept up by the crowd, it wasn't long before the friends got separated.

With Kilroy now walking alone, Hernandez made his move, asking Kilroy if he needed a lift. He said he'd drive Kilroy to the border and pick up his friends. Kilroy turned him down and walked on. Undeterred, Hernandez jumped Kilroy, forced him into the truck and disappeared through the crowd. "You'd think with all those people around somebody would have seen something," Huddleston says, looking back 13 years later.

On that night, after waiting for more than an hour back at the car, Bill Huddleston began to worry. "It was not like Mark to just not show up." So the friends walked back over the border to search Matamoros. "It was strange. The place was a ghost town, literally nobody on the street." And as dawn approached, they began to wonder if their friend had ended up in jail or worse. Tired, weary and afraid, the boys crept back to Padre, hoping that Kilroy would be there waiting. When he failed to show up, it quickly became apparent that something serious had indeed happened to him.

It was Bill Huddleston's task to call Kilroy's parents. "I remember not knowing what to say. How do you tell somebody's folks that their son is missing?" he adds. But Jim and Helen Kilroy did not panic. Jim Kilroy sent the boys back to the border and told them to speak to the police. Sheriff Gavito was there when the boys walked into the station. "I didn't normally handle walk-ins, but these kids looked clean-cut and normal. I felt bad for them," Gavito says. Still, he thought there was no cause for alarm. "I figured he'd gone out and gotten laid and was with some chick." He took the case anyway and filed a missing person's report, telling the boys to "go back to Padre. He'll show up."

At about the same time-approximately 1 p.m., according to police reports—Mark was being untied and his blindfold was being removed. Most of the cult, including El Padrino, had arrived at Rancho Santa Elena, where Mark Kilroy had been taken. Hours earlier, two other victims had gotten away from Hernandez, and he didn't want to disappoint cult leader Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo (aka El Padrino; the Godfather, in English) for fear of being punished. El Padrino told Hernandez and the other followers to "bring me the young Anglo spring breaker from the university." Serafin Hernandez knew what that meant-sacrifice the boy to quench El Padrino's insatiable thirst for human blood. El Padrino considered himself a sorcerer, following a dark African religion known as Palo Mayombe, which derives its power from human sacrifice.

Kilroy was escorted to a small grove of trees and told to sit in a hammock. One of the cult members summoned the ranch caretaker and told him to cook Kilroy some eggs and give him something to drink. Kilrov devoured his last meal. Then the caretaker was banished from the ranch. Kilroy's head was then wrapped in silver duct tape, again sealing his mouth and covering his eyes. His hands were tied, and he was taken to a makeshift temple. There, he was stripped naked and led into the building. In the middle of the room, he stood on a large piece of orange plastic.

It was 2 p.m. and Kilroy had been held captive for 12 hours. The cult members could wait no longer. If the 13th hour arrived, it would have been a bad omen to sacrifice their victim. The members also stripped completely naked and surrounded Kilroy in a circle. El Padrino started the ceremony by reaching back with a razor-sharp machete and slamming it into the top of Kilory's skull. Whacking as hard as he could to cut through the bone, he hacked the top of Kilroy's head open like a coconut. The Godfather scooped out Kilroy's brains and placed them in a large black cauldron. It was a ritual that would satisfy Satan himself, while assuring the cult members supernatural powers of strength and the ability to withstand God's powers. Kilroy's blood was added to form an evil broth that was passed around from member to member. After draining Kilrov of all of his blood. his body was mutilated and dumped into an already dug grave.

YOU DO VOODOO?

Bored with the Bible? The Torah leaving you flat? Cross over to the dark side with Palo Mayombe and worship evil to increase your own devious powers

Step 1

Produce a body Even though you need a body with flesh and a fresh brain, sacrificing your neighbor who plays Steely Dan too loud is highly illegal. Try a graveyard and look for a new grave. Start digging. Bring the body to your place of worship. Step 2

Prepare an altar Make a circle out of crushed eggshells. Place candles around it to keep the powers of good outside your ring of evil. Put a Nganga-a chain-wrapped metal cauldron. which represents evil energy and needs constant feeding-in the middle. Personalize with human hair or stacks of severed fingers. Burn incense for mood.

"Hmm . . . needs a little more Woolite"

Step 3

Find a priest The ceremony is conducted by the Palo Mayombe priest, or Palero, who begins by invoking the spirit of Kariempembe, the evil messenger of the Palo Mayombe underworld. The weird Goth kid at the indie record shop will do. In Palo, the belief is that through this ceremony, you receive powers that render you invisible.

Step 4

Invoke the spirit Chant: "Oh, mighty Kariempembe, I call your spirit from the north." (Tap three times at top of cauldron.) Then: "I call your spirit from the south." (Repeat taps at bottom.) "I call your spirit from the east." (Repeat taps on right side.) "I call your spirit from the west." (Repeat taps on left side.)

Step 5

Fill the Nganga To replenish the Nganga's spirit, fill the cauldron with human remains, The Nganga wants blood (for power) and lots of it, so start cutting. Mix in human heart (for i tenacity), brain (for keeping one step ahead of your enemies) and skin (for group security). For unknown reasons, add in sticks, a horseshoe, some turtle shell and bones. Stir until sufficiently evil.

Step 6

Drink blood The Nganga's full with power. Now it's time to get some for yourself. Dip into the Nganga with a knife and lick it clean.

Step 7

Reap powers You're now invisible. Very invisible.

AFTER THE DOORS WERE OPENED, THE PUTRID ODOR OF ROTTING FLESH GREETED THE INVESTIGATORS

Mark Kilroy's body would have never been found had it not been for luck-a chance encounter between Serafin Hernandez and the Mexican police. According to Sheriff Gavito, Hernandez tried to blow through a police checkpoint with a shipment of marijuana. This led police back to the ranch, where they questioned caretaker Domingo Reyes Bustamante, the same man who fed Kilroy his last supper. He was asked to look at a photo of a missing American student. The caretaker quickly named Hernandez and others as the killers.

After one interrogation, Serafin Hernandez admitted his role in the disappearance of Mark Kilroy. Strangely, "he was bragging about what he had done," Gavito recalls. He thought El Padrino would protect him. Hernandez led Gavito and the police back to Rancho Santa Elena and pointed to where Kilroy was buried. A metal wire protruded from the ground to mark his grave. Hernandez was handed a shovel and told to diq. With each shovelful of dirt, Hernandez grew emboldened. "He kept saying what a bad dude he was, how many people he had killed," says Gavito. "Then he started pointing out more graves, nonchalantly saying, 'If you dig there, you might find another body." It later became clear that Mark Kilroy was the cult's 18th victim.

Hernandez then pointed out the temple where Kilroy was sacrificed. After wrenching open the doors, the putrid odor of rotting flesh greeted the investigators. "I've worked 150 homicides, and nothing could prepare me for what I saw," says Gavito. The black cauldron was up against a blood-splattered wall. "It was full of human brains and hearts," Gavito recalls. Protruding from it was a spine-the trophy piece of the sacrifices.

Cult members wore the vertebrae from victims' spines as good-luck necklaces.

By the time Gavito had finished cataloging the horror inside the shack, Hernandez had unearthed Kilroy's body. "When they lifted Mark from the ground, I immediately recognized him," Gavito says. "The top of his skull was missing but his face was intact." Dental records confirmed it: Kilroy had been found nearly 28 days after his disappearance. "I'd never seen anything like it. We just kept pulling bodies from the ground."

For Gavito, it should have been case closed. But much like the lingering stench of death, the memory of Kilroy still hasn't left him. El Padrino was killed before he could be taken into custody, but Serafin Hernandez and the rest of the cult received lengthy prison terms. However, the risk for spring breakers hasn't subsided. "This should have served as a wake-up call, but it didn't. We have a situation at the border where anything can and will happen. These cults have proliferated. It's just a matter of time before something happens again.

"Don't go," warns George Gavito. "Not unless you want trouble." FHM

2 Neck

All of the women interviewed for last month's "A to Z of Sex" feature said they enjoy having their necks bitten.

"Everyone is always calling me adorable and saying what a nice girl I am. That's all fine and good when I'm meeting a guy's parents, but when it comes to the bedroom, even nice girls like playing rough. No one has ever tied me up or spanked or bitten me, but I wish they would."

Maura, 26, Pittsburgh, PA

3 Nipples

Surveys have found that women can actually achieve orgasm from nipple stimulation alone.

"Sometimes when I'm on top, I like holding my boyfriend's arms down and forcing my nipples into his mouth. But when he clamps his eyes shut while he sucks, he looks like a big baby trying to get a sip. Gross." Marisa, 23, Philadelphia, PA

5 Fingers

Most people's hands are capable of registering a sensation as minimal as 1/40,000 of a pound per square inch. "I know it sounds dumb, but after we're done making love, my boyfriend spells out messages with his finger on my palm. The delicate sensation is just about all I can take after he's had his way with me, but it's fun trying to guess what he's written. Sometimes his messages are so sweet, we go back at it."

Amber, 23, New York, NY

1 Hair

Thirty-two percent of women describe their hair as their sexiest feature. Furthermore, women think about their locks almost as much as they think about sex—a whopping 43 minutes per day.

"Normally, sex with my boyfriend is pretty mundane. But the other day, while I was on my back and he was going down on me, he reached up underneath me and pulled my hair really hard from behind. My head was pulled back, my back was arched and all I could move was my hips and hands. I'd never climaxed so hard." Sarah, 24, San Diego, CA

4 Stomach

The area between her belly button and pubic bone is packed with pleasure points. Activating them encourages blood flow to the entire pelvic region. "I love getting head as much as the next girl, but it really turns me on when a man takes his time getting there. Nothing is less attractive then an overeager lover taking an awkward tongue-dive into my lap every time the lights go out."

Amy, 25, Chicago, IL

6 Vagina

In the human anatomy, the clitoris is unique in that it serves no known purpose other than sexual pleasure. "Actual sex alone never quite does it for me. One of my first boyfriends would get on top and pump slowly, but leave enough space so I could touch myself down there too. It was like he was nothing more than my big sex toy. I loved every second of it."

Dana, 31, Los Angeles, CA

8 Ears

Each eardrum can detect vibrations of less than 1/100,000,000 of an inch. That's smaller than the diameter of a single hydrogen atom. "I love hearing every little whimper while I please my guy. But when we stay at his parents' house, he insists we remain dead silent. Sometimes I fantasize that I do him so well that he screams my name and wakes the whole house."

Betsy, 20, Boston, MA

8 More ears

Research shows that the same brain structures that are activated during sex can also be turned on by music. "Setting the mood is just as important as anything else. When I hear the right music, it makes me feel like the sex goddess I am. Which also might explain why I once got busy at a Warrant show with the grossest roadie you've ever seen." Patricia, 28, New Rochelle, NY

9 Eyes

The delicate skin of the eyelid contains no subcutaneous fat—just like the skin of your scrotum.

Because the nerves in both areas are pushed nearly to the surface, the sensation in both is almost identical. "I love it when my boyfriend explores every inch of my body, searching out all of those hidden little spots that get me hot. Nothing makes me wetter than when he licks the back of my knees, sucks on my ears or gently kisses my eyelids."

Nora, 29, New York, NY

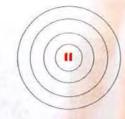

10 Nose

There's a direct sensory pathway between the olfactory bulb in the nose and the pleasure center of the brain. For most women, blood flow to the golden box increases as much as 13 percent when smelling a mix of Good & Plentys and cucumber.

"I was at a wedding, and this guy and I ended up in a back room where the flower girls had left their baskets of petals. I rarely even kiss on a first date, but when he spread the petals out on the floor, it was so romantic and smelled so sweet, I gave him the ride of his life."

Lila, 19, Bozeman, MT

12 Butt

Not only is the anus rich with nerve endings, but because the pelvic muscles are all linked together, stimulating those endings causes indirect stimulation elsewhere, including the interior portion of the clitoris.

"When my husband caught me using my vibrator, he 'punished' me by rubbing it on my other side. I'd never considered anal sex before . . . but all of the sudden, the idea seemed somewhat appealing." Kate, 34, New York, NY

11 Back

Eighty percent of women complain of back pain.

"Sometimes I get so tense, it's hard to fit his square peg in my round hole. The more I worry about it, the more I clam up. But a nice back rub. one that goes all the way down to my butt, not only makes me drool, but it also loosens me up like a gymnast." Linda, 24, Philadelphia, PA

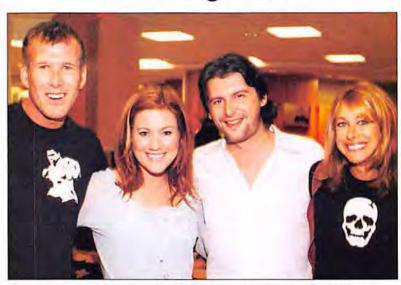

The bottoms of the feet contain neural receptors that affect heart rate, blood pressure and hormonal flow. Pleasurably stimulating these receptors releases endorphinsnatural painkillers that promote a euphoric feeling similar to morphine. "There's something nice about being pampered. I'm not saying I dig wussies, but I have made my man play Male Nurse. That's where he does everything for me that I'd normally do for myself-like rubbing my feet or painting my toenails. Having him do that stuff always leads to earth-shattering sex." Nicole, 23, Brookline, MA FHIM sually, when a drinking partner produces an uncalled-for scent and then gently belches in your face, the appropriate response would be to call him on it. When he then pulls a hat trick by hacking phlegm into his hand and wiping it off on your package of cigarettes, a good old-fashioned beating should normally follow. But when that drinking partner has spent nearly 20 years of his life doing hard time and 20 more smashing heads in bar brawls, incidental shortcomings in the manners department are easily overlooked.

At age 9, the outlaw country rocker David Allan Coe pulled his first stretch of time. From there, Coe called 10 of Ohio's finest correctional institutions home. "It was a lot of wasted years, man," says Coe, shirtless and shoeless, sitting on his couch in Ormond Beach, FL. "When I was 14 years old and in jail, I was put in the captain's hole—a solitary box—on my hands and knees and fed through a hole in the wall for 47 days. When I was 16, I had all my teeth beat out of my head with a nightstick."

Coe graduated to adult prison, where he promptly landed on death row, accused of killing another prisoner, before being released and earning a reputation as the crazed country rebel famous for writing "Take This Job and Shove It." DAC headed to Nashville, where, over time, he played with such legends as Willie Nelson and Neil Young. "For me, to have come from that environment and achieve the success that I have, against all the obstacles, is just amazing," the 62-year-old says.

The success David Allan Coe enjoys has finally come in the unlikely form of frat boys who hoard his records, and hot, naked biker chicks who bobble around at his concerts. He doesn't deny that he landed many of his new young fans because of last year's tour with Kid Rock. It's a well he's just beginning to tap. "I don't mind being asked about Kid Rock," he says. "It's my friend Rock who is sick of being asked about me!"

Now, with 250-plus songs to his credit-some of which have earned him a reputation as a homophobe and a racist-the man also famous for singing, "My long hair won't cover up my red neck" is attempting to win over millions of metalheads with his new disc of country ditties-backed by the rock of Pantera. "I can do it all," he says after finishing a show at Ormond Beach's Iron Horse Saloon biker bar. "I was the first person to ever rap. I was also the first one to say 'fuck' on television, even though they gave George

While in juvey, you did time with a young Charlie Manson. Did you two shake down other young criminals for their prison lunches?

No. He wasn't the Charles Manson we know today. He was just Charlie, a closet homosexual wannabe songwriter. So I taught him how to play guitar.

What launched your career as a young troublemaker?

My father married a woman who already had two boys and she didn't want another. She talked my dad into taking me down to the courts and telling the judge I was incorrigible. So they took me to Starr Commonwealth for Boys. I was 9, and from there I ran away with some older boys. We stole a car and everything just compounded. Has anyone ever mentioned that you resemble a scary, intimidating Santa? Mmm, no. People are intimidated by me-usually women more so than men. See, I don't play those little games. If a chick's coming on to me, I go, "Hey, dude, you know, what's up? Do you wanna suck my dick or what?" My son says, "Dad, you need to get a little better approach." I ain't got time for that bullshit. I don't want someone sitting on my bar fight? I've never lost a fight in my life. What's the most brutal ass whupping vou've issued?

Have you ever been taken down in a

A guy in Houston, TX, was trying to impress his girlfriend by throwing beer bottles onstage. I stopped in the middle of my show and said, "Dude, you throw one more bottle up here and I'm gonna whup your ass." And he said, "Fuck you, asshole." I jumped down off the stage and I beat him up pretty bad. So he sued me. He was asking for $20,000. The judge asked him why he thought he deserved the money, and he said, "Because I can't work anymore. I'm a karate teacher and nobody wants to learn karate from some guy that a hillbilly whupped in a bar." Then I beat him up in front of the judge in the courtroom. They awarded him $16,000.

I WAS ACCUSED OF KILLING ANOTHER MAN. A FRIEND OF MINE STEPPED FORWARD AND TOOK THE RAP

What's the rumble protocol in prison? One fight per day?

The best thing to do when you first go to prison is try to get into trouble. Try to establish some kind of reputation for yourself. If you came to prison while I was in there, when you went to orientation, the guard and the warden would show you a picture of four convicts and me. And they'd say, "If you see any of these guys, don't fuck with them, do not talk to them. These guys will kill you for laughing." Bottom line. Did you kill a man in prison after he demanded a little backside bugaloo? All I can say is I was accused of killing another man. And I was getting ready to be charged for that, and a friend of mine that was already doing three life sentences stepped forward and said he did it. He took the rap because there wasn't nothin' they could do to him. No means no. In this case, "no" came in the form of a ball-peen hammer? If the guy would have just asked me, I might've done it. But he was trying to force me. You know what I mean? Where does DAC draw the line? What kind of beating will "Your mother's a whore" get someone?

There was a time I would have kicked your ass for asking me for a light. Things change, but my tolerance level at 62 years old is still not very high.

As the president of the Outlaws motorcycle club, word is you were so tough on the other gang members that they all quit and you were the only member left. Exactly. Nothing comes before the club, not your mama, not your daddy, not your wife, not your kids. Nothing. Club comes first. I retired after I threw out a bunch of guys for missing a funeral. I couldn't be loyal to guys who weren't loyal to the club. We've already established you're tough, but when someone looks down at your cowboy boots and sees that you have cherries embroidered on them, they might think you're a bit, you know, soft in the pants.

Look at the boot. It's a slot machine. That's a gambler. That's a riverboat on the side of the boot there; that's a slot machine. Gambling-that's my thing.

BERSERKER

Coe's footwear: yet more controversy

I HAVE ALWAYS BEEN A HEAVY WHISKEY DRINKER. I NEVER REALLY DID HAVE MUCH USE FOR DRUGS

Is it true you once lived in a cave?
I bought a place called Ruskin Cave.
There was a cave on the property, but there were also seven houses.

So it was a commune?

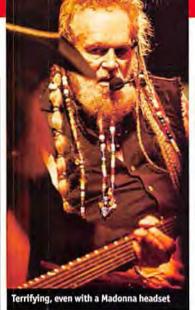

Yeah, a socialist community years ago. Was that when you decided to become a polygamist and pork four wives at the same time?

I am a polygamist. Being a polygamist means that, in your mind, you have the right to marry as many women as you want. The good thing about polygamy is you are never, ever faced with a situation like a monogamist man who wants to go to bed with his wife but she doesn't. I never knew which one of my wives was going to be in my room. And you knew that girl was there because she wanted to be with you. She's never got "a headache."

Life in Ruskin Cave sounds great. Did

Life in Ruskin Cave sounds great. Did you have the same luck when you lived on a boat in Key West?

No, I sank it. Jan-Michael Vincent was with me. It was sinking and everybody was running around trying to save important objects. Jan-Michael grabs the beer and the plastic cooler and jumps into the water. The boat sinks, and there he is floating in the water with a beer. I was a big influence on Jan. He ended up having a couple of wives, going into the polygamy. Last time I saw him, he was having a lot of alcohol problems and getting ready to check himself in someplace. I haven't seen him since.

You were also friends with another scary fellow-Elvis Presley. Did the King ever give you advice about popping ludes and wearing capes? I have always been a heavy whiskey drinker. I never really did have much use for drugs. See, to Elvis it wasn't drugs, because a doctor gave him a prescription. It was medicine. Elvis never thought of buying cocaine or what we call drugs. I never even heard the boy cuss. He was no different than the 800,000 housewives who take Valium. You wrote the famous song "Take This Job and Shove It," but never made a penny off it. What happened? I lost the rights to bankruptcy. I lost all

I lost the rights to bankruptcy. I lost all my songwriting royalties. They took my songs just like you would take a person's house or a car. They sold for $25,000. The first royalty check ever was for $32,000. I used to believe in the American dream, you know? I always thought if a man worked hard and supported his family and . . . it's bullshit. Do you have any regrets now that you're older, paying four ex-wives $8,000 a month in alimony and being forced to watch others get rich off of your songs?

I'm my own worst enemy. And there is a part of me that wishes I never made the X-rated albums. But then there's another part of me that says, "Dude, if you hadn't done that, you couldn't have survived." You know what I'm saying? Basically, I wrote an album of songs that I thought was humorous. It was humor to me. It wasn't racist, but I was labeled a racist. And I'm the furthest thing from a racist you can get. What actually inspires a song called "Cum Stains on the Pillow"?

Them songs were meant to be funny. And that's why I don't know how some people can say, "Well, this one's funny, but on this one here he's being a racist." If one of them is funny, they should all be funny. They're just meant to be funny. To be very honest with you, this magazine is the first magazine that's ever given me credit for being who I am. Everybody else puts me down for what I do and what I am, and this is the first time that I've ever gotten credit, so it's a pretty good feeling for someone to recognize you. I've had to live a long time to be recognized. I've been a tough motherfucker all my life and I'll be a tough motherfucker till I die. Right or wrong, that's just who I am. FHM nlike other musicians, David Allan Coe realized that when music ain't selling, the magic most certainly will. In just five easy steps, you too can blend magic and country music just like DAC did at the prosperous Riverside Hotel and Casino in Laughlin, NV.

Step 1: While fending off rapists and murderers, invent hybrid form of entertainment. "My dream was to incorporate the magic and the music together, which I did."

Step 2: Marry lovely country girl. Call her your assistant, dress her in sexy Jazzercise costume. Trim beard and dress in Elvis-like tuxedo outfit. Warn hecklers of potential beatings.

chimp, doves and parakeet from animal shelter. For special venues, put chimp to work in matching white tuxedo. Work in card tricks for children and blind geezers.

step 4: Perfect
the disappearing
doves and levitating sidekick tricks. After, plug in guitar and rock. "I'm probably as famous in the circle of magic for the illusions as I am for my music."

Step 5: "Do you like magic? I can show you a video. I'll show you." Film and sell video at a Web site called Officialdavid allancoe.com. When magic runs dry, rock again like an outlaw.

BOB SAGET

The self-proclaimed funny man on aroused donkeys, fat women in the shower and his nine wives

So, should I call you Bob, Mr. Saget, Saggy, Saggo, Sags?

I like Mr. Bob. It's got a nice ring to it. Dennis Miller calls me Sags, but I have no idea why.

All right then, Sags it is. Normally, we begin these interviews by giving celebrities 30 seconds to apologize for the bad projects they've done in the past. We're going to give you two minutes for Full House alone.

Full House was about three straight guys raising three girls in San Francisco. That can happen. Sure! I know it's silly, but I guess I don't really feel the need to apologize for it. People always stop me and go, "My God, I love that show! You were the perfect dad!" Of course, others say, "You were the perfect mom!"

Wait. Slow down. Are you saying your character on Full House was gay?

No! Not at all. He wasn't gay. He was a neat freak.

Care to share some fond Full House memories?

The best thing that ever happened was when we had a donkey on the show. It kept getting erections because of the air conditioning, so we called him Pepper Mill. It looked like a pepper mill and it would drop right down to the level of the Olsen twins. In front of the audience, he got incredibly aroused, and when we cracked up, it made him nervous and he took a giant crap. That was fun.

At what point did you know the Olsen twins were going to be hot?

Here we go. People are always saying to me that they're hot, but I have to take the Fifth. I'm glad they're pretty girls; I always thought they were adorable. But I've got a parental relationship with them, so I don't even think of them that way.

Do you still see the old gang?

Yeah, we're all good friends. John Stamos came to see me do standup about a month ago in LA. We were in the bathroom—Stamos is pissing in the urinal, I'm pissing in the john because, you know, I like to sit to pee— when an 18-year-old walks in and does a triple-take. He's freaking out. So we start some Full House

Q When did you know the Olsen twins would be hot?

A Here we go. I have to take the Fifth. I don't even think of them that way.

dialogue. John says, "I'll see you in a minute, Danny." And I go, "OK, Jesse, take care of the kids." The guy wasn't laughing, he was just freaking out.

Sweet. Let's talk America's Funniest Home Videos. At the height of the show's popularity—episode two would people ever walk up and kick you in the nuts?

I wouldn't mind if they cupped them. But nobody ever kicked them. What people would do is say, "I got a tape for you." Often the videos would be like two really heavy women pressing their boobs against the shower door, smashing them like pumpkins against the wall. It's just so gross.

In Half Baked, you played a cokehead. I'm starting to think that wasn't much of a stretch.

Yeah, all of that happened while I was directing the movie Dirty Work in Toronto. The producer asked me if I would do a cameo in the other movie he was producing and I said sure. I was like, "Oh, so you want me to say, I suck dick for coke?' That's fine." I didn't mind it at all. The weird part is that people say that stuff to me on the street when I'm with my kids. They'll go, "Yo, Saget. You rock! You suck dick for coke!" And I'm like, "Hey, I got my kids here, dude." I had to explain to my 8-year-old that I've never done that, nor would I ever. I mean, coke isn't good for you and sucking dick isn't high on my list either.

After Dirty Work, Norm Macdonald only had mean things to say about you.

No. he didn't.

It didn't sound pleasant when he was on Howard Stern.

Yeah, I called him on that. He apologized. I love Norm. We were in New York doing promotional stuff with Artie Lang. Artie bought a brand-new Cadillac with his Dirty Work money. I hated how he drove, so I made him give me the keys. So I'm driving his brand-new Cadillac when we hit a pothole, and I popped one of his tires. So we get a tow-truck driver who charges something like 400 bucks, but fixes it. Then Norm comes over and says, "Hey, he really wants your picture for his kid." So I go over to him and say, "Give me your address and I'll send you a picture." And he goes, "What are you talking about?" I say, "They told me you wanted my picture," and he goes, "I don't want your picture—I don't even know who you are!" Norm was already on the floor. He thought it was the funniest thing he ever heard.

So what kind of fan mail does Sags get?

I get a lot of food in the mail. Baked goods from the Philippines. A lot of women there want to be my wife.

They want to take care of me. It's a blessing and a curse because I don't know how to say no to people. I'm living with nine Filipino women right now. The place is clean, but it always smells like hot sauce and rice cakes.

You put Elizabeth Berkley in your film

Becoming Dick. Did you see her naked?

She was never paked in the movie.

She was never naked in the movie. I caught her in a tank top one morning, but that was about it. There was no nudity, but I got to see Robert Wagner's ankles.

What's the one thing people should know about Bob Saget?

The honest response is how funny I am, but that sounds pathetic. How much I love them. Is that a good answer?

What do you say to the people who say you're not funny?

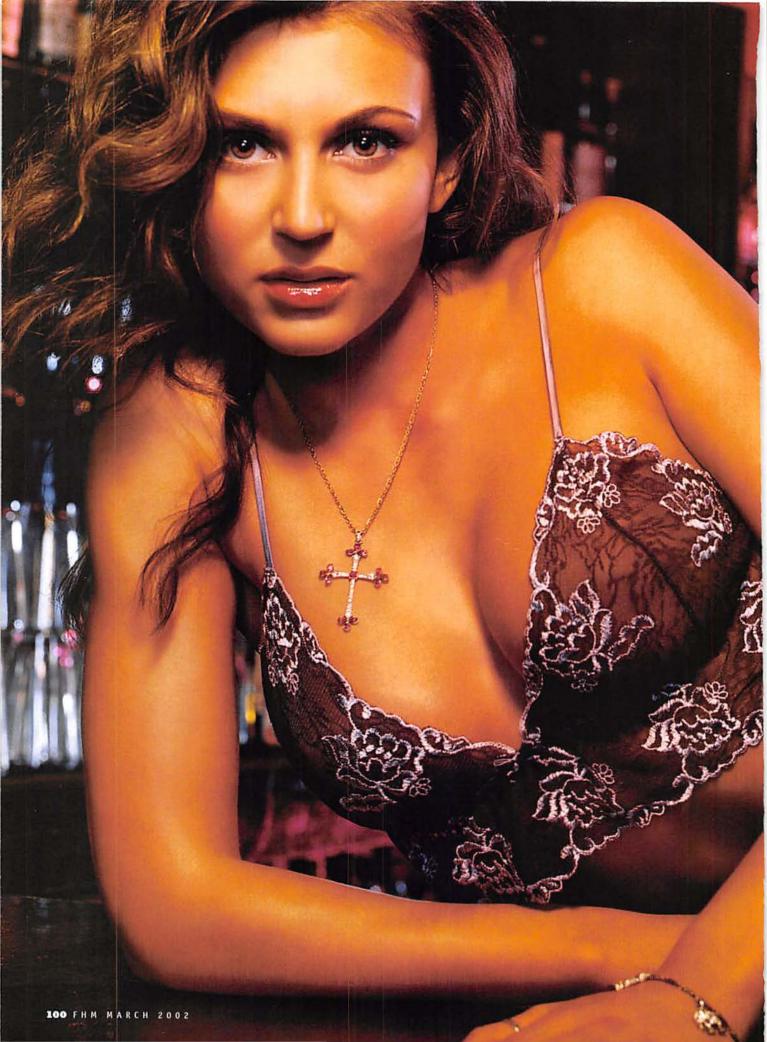

I know people have opinions. I used to do the same thing. I've armchair-quarterbacked everybody. It's such a different world when you're up there doing it. Right now, I'm having a good time entertaining people.

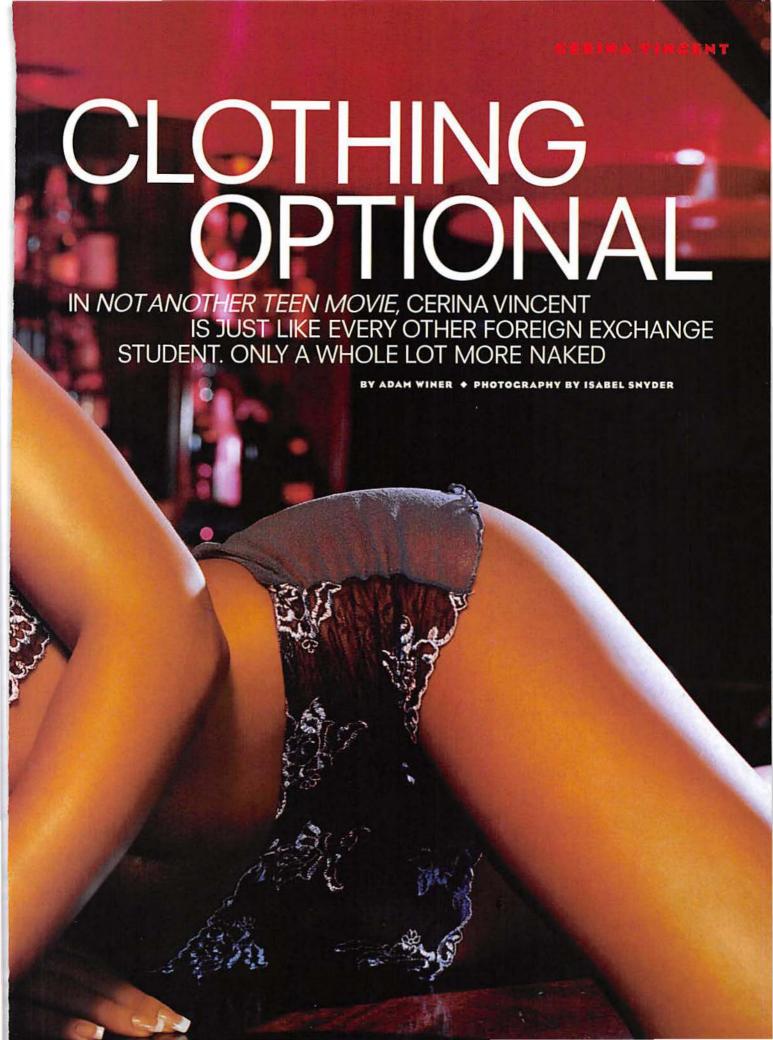

As far as being the butt of jokes, you're probably second only to John Tesh. What would it take to make you No. 1?

Every comic who knows me says, "Saget is dirty, don't even start." It's just the laypeople who only know Full House and the video show who make jokes. To me, their opinion doesn't matter. If they don't know what's funny, that's their problem. And if people have perceptions of me that I'm a dork, they should take a look in the mirror at their own ugly faces.

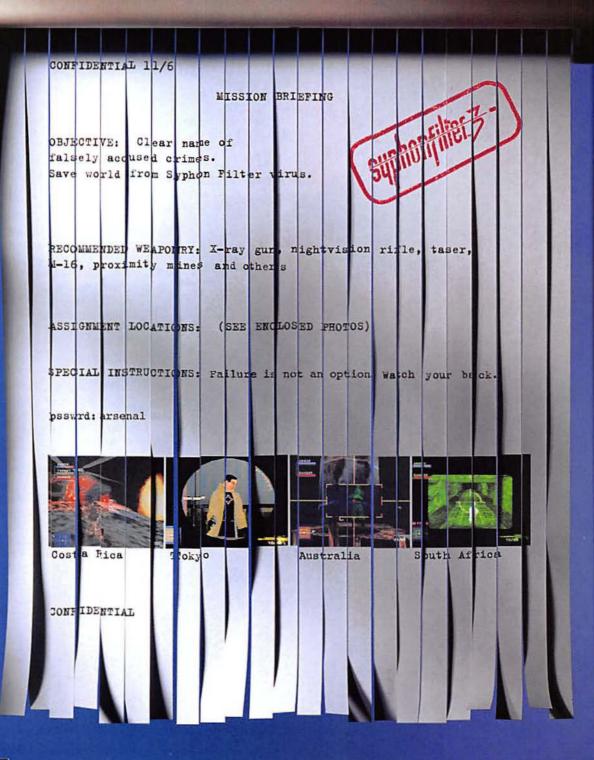

Interview by Jake Bronstein Bob's show, Raising Dad, can be seen at 9:30 p.m. on Fridays on the WB.

CANCUN, MEXICO

Best for: Number of women and underage antics—Cancun is a hot spot for high school kids with tolerant, well-off parents.

Worst for: Partiers over 21.

Ratio of women to men: 6 to 5; the largest number of women go to Cancun. Quality of women: Always a good mix, though many of them seem fresh from a Total Request Live taping.

Weird local laws: Semi-legal prostitution flourishes in the infamous Zona de Tolerancia, but drug busts of spring break revelers are relatively common. Who else is in town: Prepare to party with middle-aged people wearing name tags; Cancun is a major convention center, hosting everyone from new-age healers to insurance adjusters.

Bitterness of the locals: Low. The city is a long-time party destination, and cash-strapped, party-loving Mexico welcomes the influx of US bucks.

When you're running lean on cash, ask the nastiestlooking waitress you see if she'd like to meet for coffee the next day. You won't get free drinks on the spot, but you're solid for the remainder of your break

DAYTONA BEACH, FL

Best for: Cheap trip, pretty women and a plethora of nearby tourist attractions. Worst for: Exotic beaches. Ratio of women to men: 5 to 4; more than the standard amount.

Quality of women: Strong mix of college-age breakers and high schoolers with families.

Weird local laws: Open-container laws curb fun for sure.

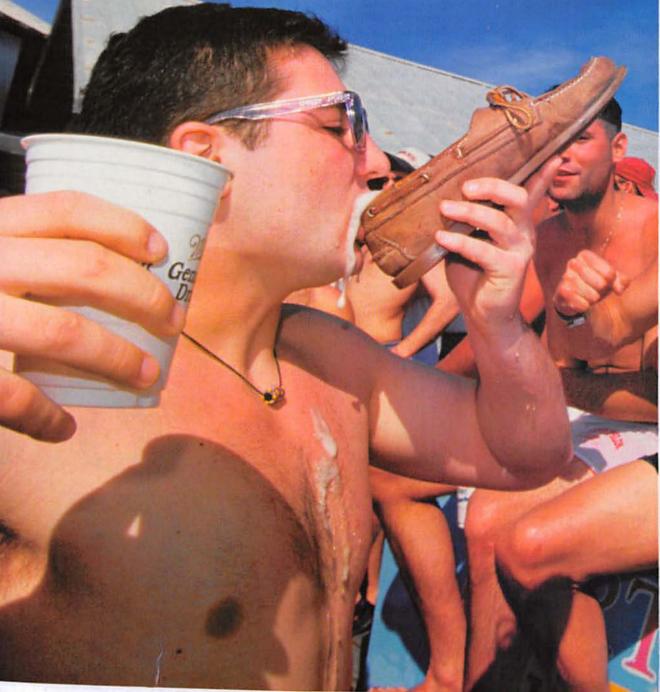

Who else is in town: Customized Harleys and fat guys with mullets.

Bitterness of the locals: High. Drunkdriving arrests and speed traps are common.

LAKE HAVASU, AZ

Best for: Those who want to party on a boat in the middle of nowhere or witness the filming of the latest Girls Gone Wild video.

Worst for: Seasickness sufferers and those who actually want a city to enjoy during their break.

Ratio of women to men: 5 to 3; one of the highest.

G-strings and snorkels: fishy

Quality of women: Not always A-list, but hey, breasts are breasts. Weird local laws: Anyone 18 with a valid driver's license can rent a motorized seafaring craft.

Who else is in town: Isolated Lake Havasu is pretty much all spring breakers during March, with only a fishing competition or classic car rally to add to the local color.

Bitterness of the locals: After serious partying peaked in the '90s, locals clamped down a bit. But the remoteness of the lake keeps townspeople insulated from the full brunt of the beer- and testosterone-fueled insanity, so the area still welcomes spring breakers. Cops do enforce drinking and public nudity laws, so keep to more remote areas if you're itching to introduce the public to Little Elvis. Learn more: www.lake

Quality of women: What shows up is fair.

Weird local laws: Bars aren't responsible for patrons' behavior. Feel free to dance on the tabletops, but don't expect Cabo Wabo to pay your hospital bills when you hit the floor face first. Palm Springs, CA

Until a few years ago, it was illegal to sell alcohol to anyone who was naked. Now, due to a whining local nudist colony, spring breakers can buy booze without the inconvenience of dressing.

Key West, FL

Spring breakers guilty of underage drinking are given eight hours ofcommunity service-to be served right away. Their dignity is further sacrificed when they're assigned to clean the very beaches they were decorating with beer cans the day before.

Fort Lauderdale, FL

After a string of broken limbs and deaths, motel employees are now permitted to place guests under house arrest if they are found swinging from balconies like alcoholic year the law took effect, 32 arrests were made.

South Padre Island, TX

Recently, South Padre Island extended their drinking hours to later in the day. However, there is still a city ordinance that specifically prohibits drinking in a hot tub before noon.

Daytona Beach, FL

Last year, the town sent copies of its new code of conduct to more than 300 campus newspapers. It contained mostly obvious laws banning climbing on balconies and tampening with fire-safety devices, but students were shocked to find a new ban on kegs in hotel rooms.

Miami Beach, FL

South Beach is renowned for its anything-goes attitude yearround, but crossdressing spring breakers will be disappointed to learn that it's illegal for a man to don a strapless gown in public.

Myrtle Beach, SC

After an incident several years ago involving a pack of drunken frat boys, it is now illegal to crawl around in the city's public sewer system (unless, of course, you have a permit).

Sexy spring break chicks don't need to know you're bald, divorced and 36 years old. Follow these tips and fool young trim. Or end up pulling your crusty old pud in some dank Holiday Inn.

YOU'RE NEVER

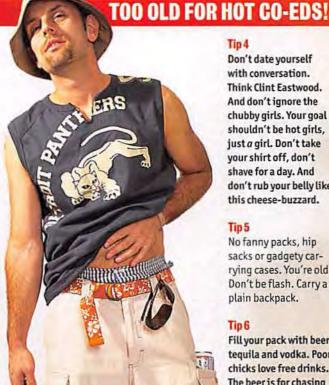

Tip 1

Don't be a bald tool. No meathead volleyball visors, dorky doo-rags or goofy moussed-up lids. Be subtle. Cover your dome with a casual hat.

You're old and already in danger of being laughed at. So no cutoff jeans, sweatpants or terrycloth nut-huggers. Stick to cargo shorts at all times. No Hawaiian shirts, tank tops or Dio concert shirts. Wear sleeveless T-shirts that don't show your flab or arm and shoulder hair.

Tip 3

No man-sandals, hightops or socks with sneakers.

Tip 4

Don't date yourself with conversation. Think Clint Eastwood. And don't ignore the chubby girls. Your goal shouldn't be hot girls, just a girl. Don't take your shirt off, don't shave for a day. And don't rub your belly like this cheese-buzzard.

Tip 5

No fanny packs, hip sacks or gadgety carrying cases. You're old. Don't be flash. Carry a plain backpack.

Fill your pack with beer, teguila and vodka. Poor chicks love free drinks. The beer is for chasing teguila shots. Save the vodka for after the bars and stores stop selling. By 4 a.m., you're no longer the old dork; you're now the cool, mature guy who got everybody loaded.

CLANCY WIGGUM'S WET DREAM

South Padre Island's Police Chief Robert Rodriguez and his 95 cops won't put a boot up your ass as long as you get naked and polish off kegs.

How many complaints do you respond to during spring break? And do cops ever get whupped in the process? Anywhere between 3,000 and 4,000. A lot of the arrests are alcohol related, but we do have our share of assaults. It depends on how you approach people. How do I handle these giant 6-foot-7, 300-pound football players? I threaten them with their coach, and they melt in my hand.

Chief Rodriguez:

Is there really a "no necktie" law? It's a proclamation. At first, people thought it was serious, but after a while, they started to get into it. If somebody comes here in a suit and tie, officers will show up with a pair of scissors. Usually, they'll take the tie off and we give them a free T-shirt, but sometimes we'll cut it off.

What's the one thing breakers can do in Padre but pretty much nowhere else? You can drain a keg on the beach. If you've got 300 or 400 students around that keg, you know how long it's going to last? And there are activities while they're out there on the beach. It's not like they're just standing around a keg, chugging with a funnel.

Ever respond to sex-in-public calls? Yes. Sometimes we just roll up on them on the beach, which seems to be the most popular place for that. We shine a light on them and tell the guy to be a gentleman, take his girl to the room. That's what the rooms are for anyway. What one tip can you give a student who might find himself behind the cold, steel bars for a night? Learn from your experience. It's a hard concrete floor in there, and when you have 40 or 50 people, the smell alone is reason enough not to do it again.

MGM MEANS GREAT MOVIES.

Best for: Amazing beaches, casino action and relaxed drinking rules. Tropical partying close to home.

Worst for: Those looking for a cheap vacation. The older crowd can dampen the helicopter vomiting party.

Ratio of women to men: 5 to 5: dead even. Women hesitant about traditional spring break insanity love a hedonistic jaunt to the Caribbean.

Dos Equis: solid remedy for wet Zumes Quality of women: The cost tends to weed out the unkempt trash. Weird local laws: Public sex gets 20 years.

Who else is in town: Pass the Grey Poupon: More than 500 yachts full of bluebloods converge for the Georgetown Cruising Regatta during March.

Bitterness of the locals: Low, but brawling and on-street craziness has landed more than a few spring breakers in unpleasant local jails.

MIAMI BEACH NEVER LOOKED AS INVITING AS IT DID THE DAY J.LO DECORATED THE SURF

BY ANTHONY NOCUERA + PHOTOGRAPHY BY TONY DURAN

here is a moment of pure Hollywoodstyle drama at FHM's Miami Beach-based Jennifer Lopez cover shoot. We are in Golden Beach, an upscale slice of Miami oceanfront, at the home of obscenely wealthy residents who are willing to ignore local bylaws stating that weekend filming may not take place on the beach without a license. Our hosts are thus running the risk of imprisonment just to be able to say that Jennifer Lopez was photographed in their backyard. On their very own stretch of private beach.

Instead of retreating up to the house to slip into her gossamer-like outfits, Jennifer, who turns 32 this July, directs her entourage to pick up towels and form a human beach hut where she can change between shots. For the evening's first shot, she emerges from her terry cocoon wearing only a teeny pair of leather pants and a totally see-through mesh top-a posh, possibly ridiculously expensive mesh top, but a mesh top nonetheless. And it's undeniable that Jennifer's nipples are obviously, some might even say shamelessly, on display. To be technically precise, it is her areolae that are enjoying the balmy Miami sea air. Not to put too fine a point on it, but they are absolutely huge, and weirdly symmetrical. Kind of like fleshy flowers. Though it's impolite to stare, FHM can't help it. Neither can two small boys who have wandered up the shoreline and plopped themselves down only yards away from the action, no doubt equally confused and excited by the commotion that Jennifer has caused in their little Speedos. Her impassive manager does a double take at the sight of his famous charge's lady-bits, nearly propelling himself out of his deck chair in a rush to cover her up. There is a moment of insane tension, until the stylist explains that Jennifer is wearing the latest in photo shoot technology: flesh-colored, petal-shaped elastoplasts that completely conceal her nipples. Welcome to Miami!

So far, the new century has been remarkably kind to Jennifer Lopez, who was voted FHM's Sexiest Woman in the World for a second consecutive year last spring. With hit movies (The Cell, The Wedding Planner, Angel Eyes) and two massive-selling (12 million copies at last count) and critically acclaimed albums (On the 6 and J.Lo), she became the first person ever to occupy the top spot on both the US album and film charts simultaneously. Other than that, she enjoyed a highprofile two-year fling with rap impresario Sean "P. Diddy" Combs, which climaxed with the pair being arrested in a December 1999 New York nightclub shooting incident. Less than eight months after her Valentine's Day 2001 breakup with Combs, Jennifer raised eyebrows with her second wedding in five years-her previous one-year marriage to male model Ojani Noa ended in divorce in 1998.

witness to the most exclusive wet white T-shirt show in the history of the world.

Even though the shoot drags on late into the night, Jennifer sounds excited about the pictures and can't wait to see her cover story. "Which picture are you going to use on the cover? The black top? Cool. That's my favorite! You have to send me the first issue off the press!"

These really are the hottest shots you've ever done.

MONEY IS NOT WHAT DRIVES ME TO WORK HARD

This time the lucky chump was one of her backup dancers, 32-year-old Cris Judd, who gives hope to folliclely challenged men everywhere. One can only assume that he goes home every night after being treated to the full A-list experience out on the town with Lopez, shuts the door and does a victory dance around the room to an imaginary cheering crowd.

Back at the shoot, Jennifer is rolling around in the invitingly warm surf, every second wave enveloping and soaking her time and time again. This is without a doubt the sexiest shoot she has ever done. Right now, she is wearing a translucent loose shirt that holds no protection against the ocean. And as she turns to face the camera, it is clear that her top has become completely see-through. This time, no nipple-camouflaging trickery spares our blushes, and FHM bears

I've always wanted to go for something like that—sexy and on a beach at night, in the water—and I was just waiting for the right opportunity. I know FHM and like, so I thought it would be a perfect opportunity to match the two. So you were pleased to win the FHM Sexiest Woman in the World for the second straight time last year? Oh, yeah! It was so overwhelming to win this award for the second time, and it's a wonderful feeling because I'm not the typical tall, thin, Hollywoodbody type. I'm truly honored to be voted by FHM readers. Any woman who says she doesn't like being called sexy . . . it's so not true. It's the most flattering thing in the world. My mom and my sisters are having a lot of fun with it. They're like, "Jennifer is the sexiest woman in the world? Get out of here!" But I really want to make it a triple this year!

And we hear you're particularly fond of the bronze supercharged Jaguar XKR 3.8 FHM gave you for winning.

I love it! There are only two in the world with the same color and specs as mine.

You've described your life as being like a circus. Do you have any performing animals at your house?

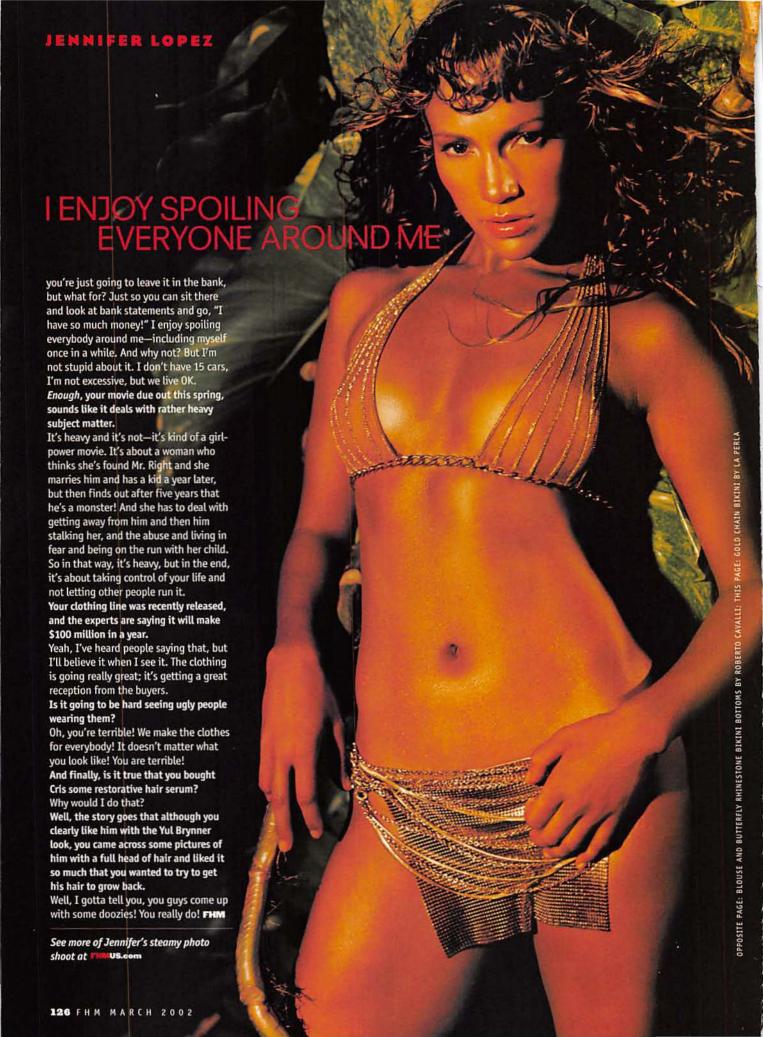

Ha! No! It's just that it can get crazy, and I use circus to mean chaotic. There are just so many things going on at once. It's like doing a juggling act.

SHAUN PALMER

The world's top extreme athlete on naked biking, swinging from treetops and the Redneck Mafia

You've won dozens of snowboard titles, come out of nowhere to blow away the mountain bike community and qualified for the main event at a Supercross race. What gets you out of bed in the morning?

I don't know. Sometimes I wake up and don't think I've done enough. I've accomplished so much in sports and don't even appreciate it. That's pretty sad. Everyone thinks it's so gung-ho easy, but I'm freaking out, trying to juggle all these different sports and pull all this shit off. My company made this poster of me, and it lists every title I've ever won. I looked at it the other day and told myself I need to relax and be proud of what I've accomplished, because I just keep chasing different dreams, and I'm miserable doing it. I need to pat myself on the back once in a while, but I never do. Nothing's ever good enough.

What triggered you to say, "I may have to quit because this is too damn easy," after winning three boarder-cross events at a 1998 competition?

I said that because there was no competition. At that point, I had ridden my motocross bike for just three months, yet qualified for a Supercross main event at the LA Coliseum. Then I went on a weeklong alcohol binge before going to the boardercross competition. I hadn't snowboarded all year until the practice the day before that event, yet I still smoked everybody. It was so easy that I had to run my mouth so everybody would give me some competition for the next season. The next season, I beat everybody again to back up my big flapping mouth.

Do you get pissed off when you think about guys who make millions to dribble a basketball or catch fly balls?

I used to, but that was just jealousy and insecurity. I just want to bring our sports into the public eye, because I think they're real. I'm a better athlete than half the NFL. I did that "Superstars" thing in Jamaica in April 2000, and Isaac Bruce was there. This is the wide receiver who had just won a Super Bowl with the St. Louis Rams, and I kicked his ass in a 220-yard running race. A running race! I would have been tied with Jason Sehorn going into the last event, but I missed a buoy on the Jet Ski. I got third.

Q Why don't you just get on NASCAR?
A I'd love to. I think they need a guy like me to stir things up.

Today's alternative sports stars are all about wacky stunts, such as Tony Hawk's Loop and Danny Way dropping in from a helicopter. What have you done that measures up?

I like to jump off big, tall decks and use trees like they're bungee cords. I did that at Mt. Snow and almost got arrested. You just run as fast as you can off the deck and tackle the top of the tree until it bends down from your weight and drops you on the ground, perfectly safe. Or sometimes, you dive onto a tree, miss it and go flying through some branches and land on your head and look like an idiot. But you look like an idiot jumping into a tree anyway, so it doesn't matter.

What kind of training did you have when you gave professional mountain biking a try back in 1995?

I never trained for shit. I drank beer and rode my bike. It was ridiculous. I won a national at Big Bear, CA, and was so anaerobic at the finish line that I just collapsed. I was chemically unbalanced, totally cross-eyed for about two hours. My body went way past the threshold. Then I had to start training.

Could the mountain biking scene ever live up to your idea of a party?

They do this race called the Naked Criterium where everybody's naked and drunk and partying. I didn't want to do it, because I'm not into riding on bikes with a bunch of guys with their wieners hanging out, But I was drunk, so I put on my cowboy boots and a red belt and wrote "Little Dick" above the "Palmer" tattoo on my stomach. And I actually had the talent to pee while I was racing, so I was peeing all over my bike while I was winning the race.

The Adelphia Pikes Peak International Hill Climb, with its 156 turns up a 14,000-foot mountain, is as challenging as it gets in motorsports. What possessed you to enter the 2000 race in a Cadillac?

Cadillac wanted to get some press out of the event, so they started this luxury auto class. We drove STS's up the hill. It was crazy. You've got to hang some balls out in certain sections that are blind, but the switchbacks in an STS? I can turn the radio on and call my girlfriend, because the thing is so slow. But there are other parts where you're going 80 and drifting, so it's still pretty fun. Cadillac hired Herzog Motor Sports to do the whole thing, including their pro-class trucks. This year, I'm going to have them build me a 600-horsepower GM Cyclone truck and see if we can't win the whole thing.

You also won a Toyota Pro/Celebrity race in Long Beach, CA. Were you responsible for the accident that flipped Donny Osmond's car?

Donny flipped his own car trying to catch me. I had nothing to do with the crash. He was miles behind me.

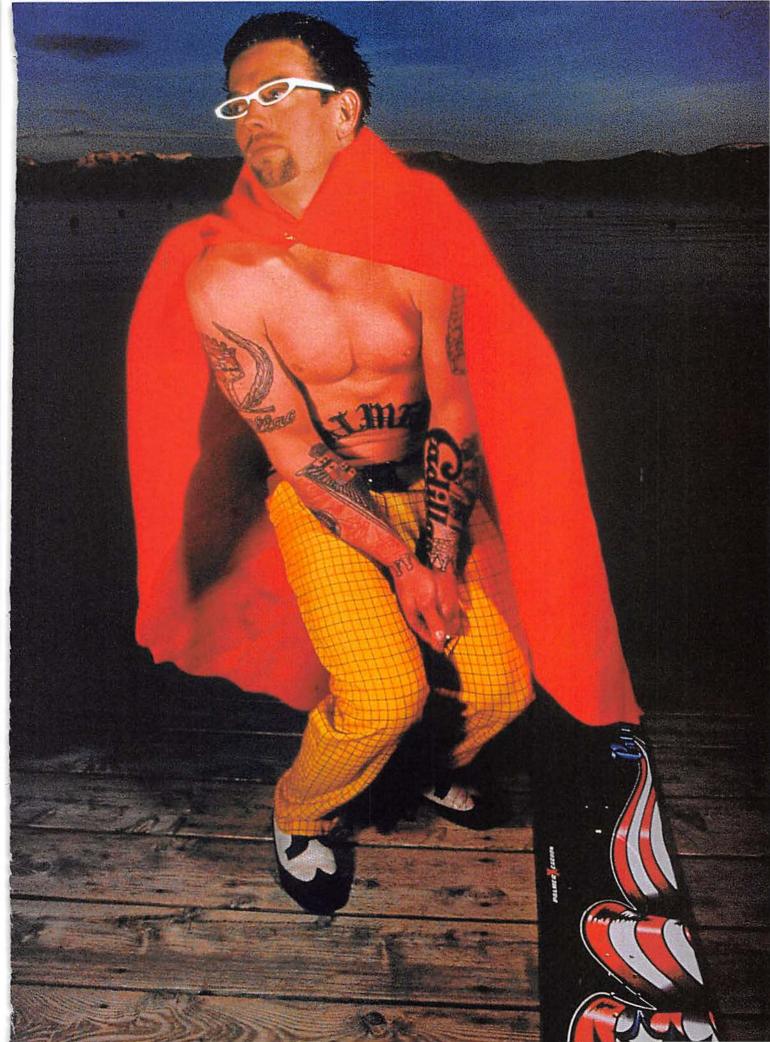

Why don't you get a sponsor and just get on NASCAR?

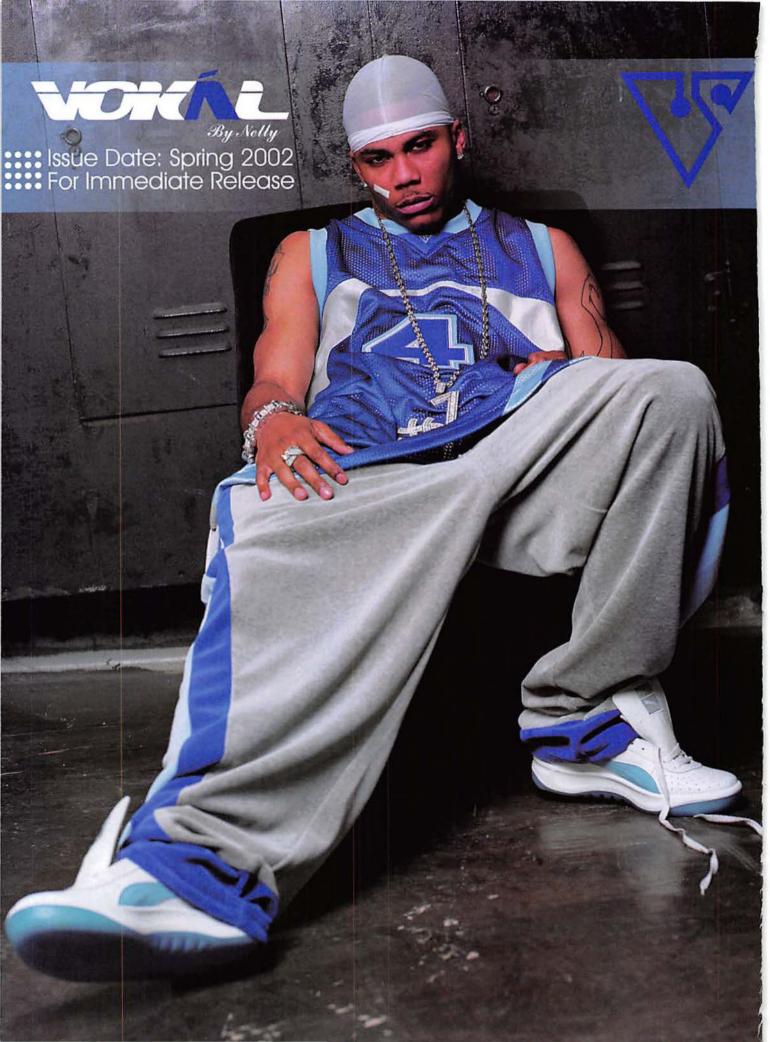

I'd love to. I think they need a guy like me in NASCAR just to stir things up. But that Redneck Mafia would never let me race. They'd put me in the wall every time. You have to be in the family out there or you're done. A couple of people have learned that lesson the hard way. Robbie Gordon opens his mouth too much. He came from CART, spraying all the time about how he was going to dominate. You don't spray to those good old boys. They run a tight-knit deal. I'd rather race F1, anyway. That's the top-notch deal, and they don't have an American right now.

Beyond a few broken bones, your injury resume is remarkably clean. Ever come close to a real mangling?

The first mountain bike World Cup I ever did was in Spain. During practice, I came around a turn, and this guy was lying right in the middle of it, so I cut to the inside and hit my hand on a rock. I smashed all my fingers and went flying 30 feet through rocks and trees. Nothing happened, but my fingers were jacked up. And I rolled a van at 70 mph, blew out all the windows and the tires. That was in Vermont. I think I'm on probation in Vermont.

Use Longitude And Win My Lamborghini Diablo!

Longitude- The Original Penis Enlargement Capsule-We created it. We tested it. Others copy it.

Actual Car In Photos

This Lamborghini has got me more women than I could handle. They just seem to flock to it. It is an incredible machine!

My Lamborghini Diablo is the "SV" model, which is even quicker than the "VT" model. The "SV" blasts from 0 to 60 in just 3.8 seconds and it's still in first gear! Top speed is 200mph!

I'm a car fanatic, so you be assured the car is in "mint" condition. It's a 1998 model with just 3000 miles on it. Not a scratch, ding, or dent. You couldn't tell it from a brand-new one.

My friends say that I'm crazy to give this Diablo away, but I think it'll make a great promotion for Longitude-The penis enlargement capsule that I've created and many try to copy.

Here's how the "Win My Lamborghini" promotion works:

This promotion is valid only to US Residents and you must be at least 18 to participate.

The car will be awarded to the man with the most drastic results using Longitude. Basically, whoever grows the most regardless of total size, wins my prized Lamborghini.

Simply read my ad on the next 3 pages and order a risk-free bottle of Longitude. When the bottle arrives, fill out the entry form and take a few "Before" photos in an erect state.

Keep taking Longitude until you are satisfied with your new growth, then stop. Take a few "After" photos, this time you'll be a lot larger.

Then, simply drop the Before and After photos in the mail along with your entry form. All entries must be received no later than September, 30th, 2002

My group of judges will review the hundreds of thousands of entries and pick a winner. They'll review the photos for maximum growth percentages and they'll make sure the photos haven't been altered. So, no cheaters please.

That's it. If you're the lucky winner, I'll remove my tags and personal belongings from the car, have it detailed, and shipped to your door at my cost.

I'll also make sure to remove the gstring underwear I found last week underneath the passenger seat.

There's no additional fee to enter this contest, except for the price of the product.

It doesn't matter how long you take Longitude. Two, Three, Four months, or you can go until the September 30th deadline. It's up to you. Just make sure your entry form gets to me no later than September 30th. And the winner is the man with the largest growth from start to finish- not who is simply the largest.

The winner will be notified 2 weeks after the deadline, and then the car will get shipped on it's way to your home.

When the truck pulls up, he'll unload the car, hand you the title and keys then take a quick snapshot of you and the car. Then the car is yours forever!

Can you think of a better way to show women the "new you"? My Lamborghini will get you so many women, you won't believe it! That car has landed me models, strippers, even a famous actress- seriously.

This Diablo game me hundreds of opportunities to show women the results Longitude gave me. Now the car can be yours.

The Ultimate Car, The Ultimate Product. Order Longitude risk-free on the next page and who knows... you may be the new owner of my Lamborghini! Good Luck!

67% of Women Say They're UNHAPPY With The Size Of Their Lover's Penis...

Muscles, Money, and Looks help, but women want a "bigger" man.

The Average Penis Size Is Just 6 Inches... But Who Wants To Be "Just Average"?

Longitude Capsules-The Original

Don't be fooled by knock-offs and counterfeits. Longitude Is The Only Pill That Is Guaranteed To Increase Your Penis Size By 1"... 2"... 3"... or more in just a few short weeks! (with absolutely no adverse side-effects)

Dear Fellow Man...

What I'm about to tell you is absolutely true. If you believe me, you will be greatly rewarded for the rest of your life. If you don't believe me... I'll make it worth your while to change your mind. Let me explain.

I'm the President of what I believe is, the most advanced Herbal Nutrition Company in the United States. Over the past few years, my company created some incredible, breakthrough products... but this one has been our most successful by far!

Our latest and most controversial product is called Longitude and by simply taking 2 Longitude capsules every day... it will make your penis grow in both length and thickness by a whopping 26%.

Sounds impossible? Of course it does... but 96% of the men who try Longitude have great success, growing 1"... 2"... 3"... and more. I myself gained 2 1/8" in just 8 short weeks on Longitude. I am extremely pleased with this product's performance.

I'm a single guy... so I do date quite often and let me tell you man-to-man... NOTHING, and I mean NOTHING beats the look on my lover's face as she sees it for the first time... watching her gasp... almost in disbelief... with a slight look of fear in her eyes. I can't describe how confident a bigger penis makes me feel!

You Don't Believe Me... Right?

I don't blame you for being skeptical of Longitude... hell, even when my research team told me they had finally got it right after 3 years of research and testing, I didn't believe it. That's why I tried Longitude personally.

Let Me Explain How Longitude Works... It'll Help Convince You...

Your penis has three chambers... 2 large ones on top which are your erectile tissue and one smaller one on the bottom which you urinate and ejaculate from. And...

(next page please...)

When you get an erection, your brain releases a hormone which sends blood to your penis, filling your erectile tissue. The blood cavities in your erectile tissue fill to the maximum, giving you an erection.

Longitude will give you a more muscular look, surely standing apart from other penis... A penis your lover will remember for the rest of her life!

100% Natural & Safe Longitude Will:

Here's What You Can Expect To Happen Taking Longitude:

Week 1-3: Your penis will experience greater and longer lasting erections and a noticeable increase in thickness.

Week 4-8: Your penis will have grown in length and will possess much more thickness in both- erect and flaccid states.

Week 9+: Your penis will have taken on a new body, not just longer and thicker, but much harder and healthier.

Now get this... the maximum your erectile tissue can fill with blood creates the size your erect penis presently is. But here's the breakthrough we've discovered... Your erectile tissue can be developed much larger and stronger than it is with our product Longitude.

Simply put... your penis is EXTREMELY unfit and smaller than what it could be if your erectile tissue chambers were larger (holding more blood). Longitude will go to work on these chambers - increasing their size in both length and width... to hold more blood... getting you a few extra inches you wish you were born with.

After just a few days on Longitude, you will start to see and feel much difference in the way your penis hangs and feels when erect.

Longitude will also promote increased sensitivity... getting you more "feelings" during intercourse, enabling you to achieve ROCK HARD erections ANY time you desire.

- Strengthen and harden your erections like a length of STEEL PIPF!
- Develop your PC Muscle to form a truly "muscular" looking penis that will impress and arouse your lover. I guarantee they'll brag to their friends.
- Enlarge your penis 1-3" or more AT HOME, without vacuum pumps, weights, or surgery.
- Intensify your orgasms.
- Achieve more powerful thrusting ability.
- Last as long as you want without drugs.
- Achieve ROCK HARD erections any time you want... your lover won't believe it!
- Safely and Permanently enhance your penis size, strength, and ability without expensive and dangerous pumps, weights, drugs, or surgery.
- And much, much more!

When you feel you are at your peak performance level in penis size and mass... you'll have a new found confidence... knowing you can please any woman more than any other man could - no matter how hard he tried!

It's pretty simple to understand... the size of your erectile tissue chambers is what limits your penis to the size it is now. Longitude painlessly makes these chambers longer and wider, holding more blood... making your penis several inches longer.

90% Of Men Have A 6" Penis... That's The Average Size Longitude is made for men that are NOT HAPPY WITH AVERAGE!

You don't want to make an average income... live in an average home... drive an average car... why settle for an average penis... especially since it is inexpensive and safe to have some serious machinery between your legs.

Try Longitude without risk... here's how:

A One-Month supply of Longitude (60 capsules) costs just $59.95 plus shipping. Get yourself a bottle right now by calling 1-800-518-3492 with your credit card, 24 hours a day - 7 days a week. Easy- with a 96% success

CP NUTRITIONALS DIRECT creators of Longitude Call 1-800-518-3492 to "try" Longitude risk-free for one month

PS: In a recent survey conducted by Durex Condoms, 67% of women said that they are unhappy with the size of their lover's penis. Proof that size does matter! A larger penis has much more surface area and is capable of stimulating more nerve endings, providing more pleasure for you and your partner. A man endowed with a 7" or 8" penis is simply better "equipped" than a man with a 5" or 6" penis. Would you rather have more than enough to get the job done... or fall short. It's totally up to you.

A special bonus if you are PPS: one of the first 250 men to try Longitude risk-free... You'll receive FREE membership into our Preferred Customer Club where you'll receive a $20 discount off every future bottle of Longitude. In addition, so you do not go a day without our capsules, you'll automatically receive a new 30-day supply every month and we'll bill you just $39.95, plus shipping that's $20 OFF the retail price. Trust me- after a week on Longitude you will not want to live a day without this product until you reach your optimum length. Once you reach your optimum length in about 3 months, call us and we'll stop sending automatic shipments. There is no minimum amount of bottles to buy and you can cancel shipments at any time. And if you take us up on our 30-day money back guarantee, your credit card will never be billed again.

PPPS: This breakthrough product will make your penis grow, and grow until you decide it's the perfect size. When it reaches it's optimum size, stop taking Longitude. You do not have to take Longitude ever again- the results are permanent. Most users stop taking Longitude once they reached 8" to 9" (about 12 weeks). It is not advised to go past the 9" limit for the simple fact that you'll be too big for many women.

Here's Some Of The Most Common Questions New Users Have:

What Is Longitude?

Longitude is a 100% safe and natural formula that is guaranteed to increase penis size by an average of 26%.

How Does Longitude Work?

Longitude permanently enlarges your two erectile tissue chambers in your penis to hold more blood during an erection... thus, making your penis much, much larger in size.

Are Their Any Negative Side-Effects?

Absolutely zero. A positive side-effect is that you'll be more sensitive, enjoying Intercourse more.

How Do I Take Longitude?

Simply take 2 easy to swallow capsules every day.

How Long Can I Expect My Penis To Get?

Measure yourself during full erection and add 26% - that is the average size increase. Longitude will continue to work the longer you use it.

How Long Will It Take To Work?

Longitude will start working instantly, making your penis thicker and erect more often. Length growth starts a few weeks later and the total process usually takes 12 weeks.

How Long Should I Take Longitude?

Take it until you get to 8" or 9". After you get to this size, we advise you stop taking it. Any longer of a penis would be too large for most women to handle.

What Are The Ingredients of Longitude?

Longitude is a proprietary blend of the following 100% safe and natural ingredients: Zinc, 300 Yohimbe, Maca, Catuaba, Muira Pauma, Oyster Meat, L-Arginne, Oat Straw, Nettle Leaf, Cayenne, Pumpkin Seed, Sarsaparilla, Orchic Substance, Licorice Root, Astragalus, Tribulus, Boron, and Ginseng.

RON Jeremy

The film legend on Mustangs, sex while driving and why he doesn't need a flashy car

Your contract with the owner of RonJeremy.com states that he must buy you a new car every two years. What sort of cars does the Internet afford one these days?

I had a Mercury Mystique, and then a Saturn. I don't really care about fancy cars. As the joke goes, I already have a penis. I can't show it here, because I'm doing the interview, but my penis is out parking the car. But I can't get too

My first car was a Duster. I totaled it in an accident, but it kept going for years impressed because they made a mold of my genitalia and it's for sale around the country. It's like 40, 50 bucks, Sammy Sosa and Mark McGwire can make millions selling their balls; I have a Kmart schlong.

Do you service your own cars? I've had lipstick on my dipstick.

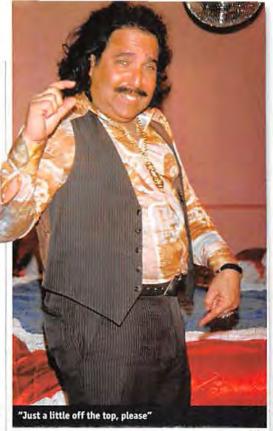

Are you ever too old to have sex in a car?

Are you ever too old to have sex in a car?

No, and here's a trick. You can have sex while driving. You twist to your right and let your left leg take over steering. Your right leg is now on the other side of the hump. You're looking out the window while you drive, and the girl does all the work. She takes her pants down to her knees, and does you in sort of a spooning doggie style. She has to go back and forth, and it works. I've done it.

So, you're a sensible car kind of guy. If you wanted to get a little crazy and get yourself something sporty, what would you buy?

I've always dreamed of having a Mustang. I used to have a little yellow Maverick when I was a kid.
My first car was a Plymouth Duster. It was the greatest engine ever made, which was the Chrysler Slant 6. I totaled it in an accident, but it kept going for years. I finally had to give it up at 160,000 miles, and they had replaced the Duster with the Volare. The Volare was recalled three times. It supposedly had the Chrysler Slant Six, but those cars were just average. I actually took the time to write to "My man in Detroit." I said, "What the hell did you guys do? The Volare's a piece of shit." He goes, "Well, it was time for a change." I said, "A change for what? A change for the worse? You think I'm stupid?" From that day on, I realized cars just suck. And car dealers suck, and car manufacturers suck. Then I had the Maverick, which was good. It had a real quiet ride. Fords have quiet rides. If I finally drop the Web site, I might get a Mustang. They're such goodlooking cars, with a little horse on the back. And I'm hung like one.

history of mediocre cars, would you say a big flashy car is the sign of a little dick?

I don't want to make anyone uncomfortable, but I will say that myself, John Holmes, Peter North and Rocco have had average cars. Now, you can check on Milton Berle, Forrest Tucker, Harry Morgan, John Kennedy and Frank Sinatra, see what they drove. And Willem Dafoe, See what he's driving,

BEA SEXUAL DYNAMO!

If it feels as though you've run a marathon after a simple quie le between the sheets, there's still hope. Fill has the solution to your sexual pitfalls ex, if done properly, can be a sweaty, muscle-straining affair. But there's a big difference between huffing and puffing triumphantly after hours of Intense rumpty, and collapsing in a comatose heap after a few pathetic jabs in your good lady's general direction. It's easy to guess which one will keep them coming back for more.

If you fall into the feeble, asthmatic, two-pump-chump category and plan on having sex again sometime in the foreseeable future, don't even think about reaching for that supposed maker of men, the economy-size bottle of Viagra. Besides being a damn shame at your age, having a sturdy mast means nothing if you can't sail the boat. Barring obvious contributors to a crappy sex life (loads of booze and cigarettes), FHM has consulted the experts and found a few quick and relatively easy ways to keep you in charge and off your feet.

3 STEPS TO HEAVEN...

Leave the house

There's no two ways around it: You must use your muscles or they will dissolve. That doesn't mean devoting your life to the gym. However, it does mean you need to run, bike, jump rope or take up some sport that gives you regular aerobic exercise. Besides increasing stamina, aerobic exercise helps regulate hormone levels (and actually boosts all-important testosterone) and increases blood flow all over, including your nether regions. A University of California study found that after one hour of exercise three times a week, men had more sex, with more frequent orgasms and even more reliable sexual function (read: stronger wood).

Eat something green
As wonderful as the God-given pleasures of fast food are, they're killing you, and more importantly for now, your so-called sex life. Studies have shown that after a hearty, high-fat meal, a man's testosterone level drops through the floor. Not only does your interest in sex suffer, but so do your nerve responses when you can muster it You don't have to dive up even thing.

does your interest in sex suffer, but so do your nerve responses when you can muster it. You don't have to give up everything good, but try mixing fresh raw veggies into your diet (even a glass or two of V8 juice will do), as well as foods that contain vitamins C and E to clear up your precious bodily fluids.

Remember: You can never go wrong with broccoli.

Pop a pill or two

Without falling prey to love-pill scams or old wives' tales that have you ingesting the powdered entrails of endangered species, there are a few supplements that will help. Start with a standard multivitamin to make sure your body is getting all the vitamins and minerals that should be there but probably aren't. Then try out more exotic but proven herbs, such as Yohimbe (see below), a tree-bark extract that's been shown to make erections harder and firmer—and that was for impotent men. Also consider a zinc supplement. Studies have shown that Americans tend to be zinc deficient, and that the mineral is essential for a healthy body.

POTENCY

WAKE UP, WOODY!

Long the secret of cagey and presumably wide-smiled African medicine men, Yohimbe is a little like junior Viagra, only natural and you don't need a prescription. It's not a magic pill, but Yohimbe has been shown to increase blood flow to the genitals (in men and women), which is a boost for those with erection issues. It also joins the endless list of supposed aphrodisiacs, as it makes your special nerves more sensitive and turbocharges your libido. Be warned

FAST FACT

Every US president has worn glassessome of them just didn't like to be seen wearing them in public

SNEAKERS

SHOE SHOPPING

A proper running shoe can mean the difference between good exercise and having a gimpy walk for the rest of your days f you've chosen running for the fitness routine meant to ensure you don't die by age 40, there are a few rules of the road to observe: None of your friends care how fast your average mile is; no one wants to stand around for hours to watch you run a race, unless you might actually win; and shoe technology is such these days that you will permanently cripple yourself if you don't wear the right shoes while training. The first step is figuring out what type of feet you have (see "Know Thy Feet," above right). Then, look for a shoe based on the categories below. As a rule of thumb, a correctly fitted shoe should have a half-inch of room from your longest toe to the front edge of the sneaker, as well as space on top from your highest toe.

Motion-control

Ideal for the flat-footed and also some fatties with bad feet, this heavy but durable shoe is particularly rigid to prevent the foot from rolling too much to the inside (overpronating).

Good for the runner with normal arches who likes a blend of cushioning with a little extra support, or someone who's a little overweight and womed. They're durable and a bit rigid, but not as stiff as motion-control shoes.

Cushioned

Usually designed with a curved shape to encourage foot movement in the shoe, they are best for high-arched runners, who typically have rigid, inflexible feet.

SELF-EXAMINATION

KNOW THY FEET

Barring farming accidents, there are only three types of feet. To find out which kind you have and which shoes are best for them, wet your feet, stand on a brown paper bag, then compare the wetness to the drawings below.

You are totally mediocre. Your foot has a gap at the arch and a wide band connecting the heel to the toes. When you run, your heel rolls to the toes, which absorb the shock. Try a semicurved shoe that's moderately stable.

More than just a funny way to describe a loser, a flat foot has a "fallen arch," so you roll your foot too much when running. Shooting pains? Thought so. Look for straight or semicurved shoes with motion control.

High-arched

Your highly inflexible foot (a thin band connecting the heel to the toes; an obvious arch) absorbs impact all wrong. Look for a curved shoe that's cushiony and flexible, and avoid anything with motion control.

Lightweight

Unless you're a pro who's running sprints, you don't need an ultra-light shoe. These are typically curved and generally stable, but have a lot less support than other styles.

The choice for off-road runners, a trail shoe is very stable with reinforced toe bumpers and stitching all around. The sole has extra traction and less give to prevent bruising from stones and whatever else you trod upon.

BACONOMETER

To better understand the ramifications of your wretched diet, FHM relates your grub's fat content by comparing it to God's perfect food

POLICE BUST

Cops investigate moans

I'm a police officer, and one day my partner and I received a call about a "female down, unable to get up." When we arrived on the scene, we were met by a neighbor who told us he'd heard moaning and groaning emanating from his new neighbor's house. Sure enough, my partner and I heard the sounds of a woman in pain. We pounded on the door, but received no response. Finally, after calling a supervisor to the scene, we informed the woman that, because this was an emergency, we were going to take down the door. When we stormed in, all we found were two deaf lesbians who were clearly startled to see us. With pad and pencil, they informed us that they had no need of police assistance. PIT STOP

Drunk retastes drinks

I was driving my friend Tex home after a night of drinking when he announced he had to boot. I pulled into the nearest neighborhood and headed for a dark corner. Halfway down the street, Tex grabbed his mouth and bailed out of the car headfirst. We must have been going 35 mph. In my rearview mirror, I watched him roll down the street. I thought he was dead, then all of sudden, he got up, took off his shirt and wiped the puke from his face. He took about three steps, threw his messy shirt into someone's yard and collapsed. I then managed to pull him into the car. When he came to,

TAILGATE CONTEST

Ass wins prize

I had free tickets to a Rams game, but I wanted to mess with my friend Tom's head, so instead of telling him, I took him to a tailgate party and said we'd just figure a way in. I then convinced some strippers who were passing out flyers to help me play a trick on Tom. I gave them the tickets, and on cue, they showed up and asked if we wanted to be in their Best Ass contest. As a crowd watched, they spun us around and groped our butts. Then they ruled Tom had the best ass and gave him our tickets. Overcome with excitement, Tom proclaimed himself "Ass Man." When we got to our seats, he shouted, "The Ass Man is here!" before pointing at his pathetic rear. That nonsense went on for weeks until I finally told him the truth. He was crushed. Especially because he'd just ordered a Rams jersey with the words "Ass Man" on the back. Frankly, I still think the name is fitting. Scuba Linneman, St. Louis, MO

Tex bailed out of the car headfirst. We must have been going 35 mph he looked at me and asked, "I didn't get any puke in the car, did I?" before passing out again. He later told me that all he could remember about bailing out was how he made the same sound a tire makes when it goes flat at high speed. Jesse Cunningham, Houston, TX

BATHROOM VISIT

Husband produces a sample

Frustrated over our failed attempts to have a baby, my wife and I decided to see a fertility doctor. As my appointment approached, I began to dread the idea of masturbating in some cold office and wondered if I'd be able to perform under the pressure. At the doctor's office, I filled out some paperwork, and then the nurse handed me a cup and told me to go to the bathroom and bring back a sample. I was a bit irritated that I didn't have a video or magazine to help me, and was downright annoyed when I realized I'd been sent to a public bathroom. I went to the stall farthest from the door and proceeded to let the festivities begin. It was a horrible endeavor, but after 20 minutes and more than a few interruptions by other bathroom-goers, I finally produced a cup of my "home brew." When I handed my sample to the nurse, she looked at it in surprise. "I'm sorry," she said. "I thought I explained-we just needed a urine sample from you today." The mistake was so embarrassing, I haven't even been able to tell my wife. Anonymous, via e-mail
